AUTO CRASHES CAUSE INJURIES TO SEVERAL ON COUNTY HIGHWAYS

No One is Killed But Many Narrowly Escape Death as Cars Collide; Broken Tire Causes One Wreck; Two Smash In Scippo Bridge; Others Reported.

A number of persons miraculously escaped death on highways of the county over the week-end when several serious accidents were reported. Possibly the worst accident, from the standpoint of the condition of the automobiles, occurred on the bridge near Scippo park late Sunday night. Another bad accident was on the Columbus-pk near the Ed Wright farm where three Columbus men were badly injured.

COLLIDE IN BRIDGE

Although two automobiles were almost demolished when they crashed head-on in the Five Mile bridge on the Scioto Trail, south of here, at 10:45 p. m., Sunday, no one was critically injured.

Ralph Bates, 18, of Lancaster, occupant of a Chevrolet automobile, suffered cuts on both shins and bruised hands and Myrtle Moodie, 16, Hattie Moodie, 19, and Franklin Moodie, 21, all of Chillicothe, in the other car, a Ford roadster, suffered cuts and bruises. The Ford was owned and driven by Smith Young of Kingston.

The injured were taken to Berger hospital in the Albaugh Co. ambulance where they were treated and discharged.

It is thought drivers of both cars tried to beat the other to the bridge with the result that they crashed.

TIRE BLOWS, 3 HURT

Robert Sugwert, 52, of 40 N. Ogden-ave, Columbus, his son, Harold, 24, and G. T. Bond, 48, of 436 S. Burgess-st, all of Columbus, are in serious condition at Mercy hospital, Columbus, suffering from injuries sustained in an accident north of the Mackeyford road, caused when a front tire on the Chevrolet driven by the younger Sugwert blew out. The car was turned over in a ditch.

The elder man is thought the worst injured, suffering from a possibly fractured skull, a fractured hip, his tongue was cut and possible internal injuries are feared. His condition is critical.

The son was severely bruised about the chest and Bond has a dislocated chest in addition to other injuries. The men were taken to the hospital in the ambulance of E. F. Schlegel of Ashville.

The party, with a fourth man, who was uninjured, had been in Marietta at a Knights of Pythias meeting and were returning home at 3 p. m. when the tire blew out.

DRIVER ARRESTED

Henry Grubb, 42, of Jackson-twp, is being held in the county jail facing a charge of possessing intoxicating liquor following an automobile crash in which Grubb's car is alleged to have struck the automobile of William Schmitter of Columbus. The accident happened on Route 104 in Jackson-twp, when it is reported, Grubb drove his car off the road and struck the auto of Schmitter parked on a drive when a tire was being repaired.

Grubb, when brought to this city acted peculiarly, according to authorities and upon being searched gave up a bottle of alleged whiskey.

FOUR IN ACCIDENT

Four automobiles figured in a crash near the county line south of this city on the Scioto Trail early Monday morning with no one injured.

It is reported by Sheriff Charles Radcliff who investigated the wreck that a Dodge truck of the Buckeye Bag and Burlap Co. had parked on the side of the road, facing south, while its driver a colored man, fastened tarpaulin over the truck to protect its load. Ray Ammerson of Tiffin, driving a Ford coupe stopped beside the truck to talk to the driver. He, too, was going south.

Charles Wills of Chillicothe R. F. D 7, driving a Ford north, started to pass the two parked cars when Alex Thies of Tiffin, traveling south started to pass the cars from the other direction. The latter saw Wills' car approaching and applied the brakes of his Chrysler which skidded into the front end of the Wills car, turning it over.

The front end of the Wills car was badly damaged as was the rear end of Thies' automobile. Miraculously no one was injured

130 TEACHERS IN CONFERENCE

Ashville School is Scene of Excellent County-Wide Meeting Saturday.

One hundred and thirty Pickaway-co teachers and friends gathered at the Ashville high school Saturday to take part in a county-wide conference, the first one of the year. One hundred and twenty-one registered for the dinner at noon served by the Parent-Teachers association of the school and 131 attended the meeting in the afternoon when George M. Morris, rural school supervisor of the state department of education addressed the gathering.

Other talks were by Prof. M. S. Cox, county school superintendent, W. B Bliss, school newspaper publisher, and Mrs. Harriet Stuart who spoke on 'Temperance.'

The meeting was very successful one.

Evade Jinx, Wait Until Morning

Friday, the 13th didn't stop this double wedding: the principals simply waited until the next morning

Raymond Smith, desk officer of the city police department and Miss Fay Swank of Darbyville, and Kenneth Cox of this city and Miss Wilda Swank, also of Darbyville, were married in Newport, Ky., Saturday morning. The brides are sisters

Leaving Friday, the two couples arrived at Newport in the evening but, remembering that it was Friday the 13th, they waited until the justice of peace court opened Saturday morning and there made their vows.

PRISONERS PLAY GUITAR, HARMONICA

Speaking of real music, two prisoners in the Pickaway-co jail have been entertaining their colleagues in the past few days with guitar and mouth organ masterpieces

Homer McCain, 23, in the jail for driving an automobile without the owner's consent, plays the guitar and sings and Ben Sawyer held on a statutory charge plays the harmonica. A program of She's Coming Round the Mountain Hand Me Down My Walking Stick and The Prisoner's Song was played Sunday evening by the boys.

B P O. Elks are planning a turkey dinner Thursday at 6:30 p m.

Wet-Dry Tragedy

Tragedy followed in the wake of the over-zealous efforts of Federal Prohibition Officer Henry Dierks (upper) when he started to arrest Milford Smith (lower), 20-year-old Englewood, Colo., youth, for having a bottle with a few ounces of wine in it. Not knowing Dierks was an officer, Smith resisted his efforts to wrest the bottle from him. As a result, the youth, severely battered over the head and allegedly thrown in jail without medical treatment, died a few hours later.

G. O. P. SEES TAX BOOST

Watson and Smoot Say Issue Cannot Be Evaded After Hoover Conference.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 16.—Two of the Republican party's spokesmen on capital hill—Senator James E. Watson, Republican leader of the senate, and Senator Reid Smoot, chairman of the senate finance committee—announced today that congress would be asked by the administration to increase taxes.

Watson made the announcement after having conferred with President Hoover for three hours yesterday. He said the tax increase could not be avioded.

Smoot suggested the possibility of the enactment of a sales tax. He added that if the income tax is increased "no doubt the greater income will have to bear most of the burden."

Japanese Ignore Ultimatum to Evacuate Manchurian Territory

FIGHTING GOES ON

Gravity of Situation is Felt by Entire World

BULLETIN

By International News Service

The league of nations council met behind closed doors at the French foreign office late this afternoon in an effort to solve the Sino-Japanese conflict in Manchuria.

The extreme gravity of the situation created by Japan defiance of the league demand that she evacuate her troops by today caused the council to resort to secret diplomacy.

A public session lasted only twenty five minutes. Outsiders were then excluded and a private session began at 4:30 p. m. (11:30 a. m. Eastern Standard Time).

Meanwhile fighting continued on the Nonni river front General Ma Chan-Shan having rejected the Japanese ultimatum to retire which expired at noon today as an afront to Chinese soverignity.

POWERS SEEKS VENUE CHANGE

'Bluebeard' Slayer's Attorneys Claim He Can't Get Fair Trial In Case.

CLARKSBURG, W. Va., Nov. 16.—Claiming it was impossible for his client to get a fair trial in Harrison-co, J. Edgar Law, counsel for Harry F. Powers, "Bluebeard slayer," today filed a motion for a change of venue in the courtroom of Judge John C. Southern here.

State's Attorney Will E. Morris objected to presentation of argument on the motion and told the court the plea for change of venue should be accompanied by affidavits and depositions. After a short hearing, Judge Southern took under advisement the question of whether he will hear argument on the motion or order affidavits filed in support of it. He will announce his decision sometime this week, it was indicated.

Powers, who was brought from the county jail to the courthouse to be present at the proceedings, seemed thoroughly frightened as he entered the building.

HARDING'S FRIEND IS DEAD IN MARION

MARION, O., Nov. 16—An intimate friend of the late president Warren G. Harding, J. F. Prendergast, 68, was dead here today after an illness of nearly a year.

Prendergast managed the local campaign of Harding in his presidential race and was a first vice president of the Harding Memorial Association. He headed a lumber company bearing his name.

Two sons, Harold and Walter, survive. The latter is secretary to Charles G. Dawes, ambassador to England.

MERCHANTS LOSE

The Merchants lost a hard fought football game to the McArthur Independents Sunday at the latter place by a 19-2 score.

Superiority in their air attack gave the home players a margin over the visitors.

Next Sunday the locals meet Greenfield here at Heise's field.

POST TO BANQUET

Howard Hall post American Legion will have a rabbit supper at its regular meeting Wednesday evening, according to an announcement Monday by Paul H. Betz, commander. A good turn out is expected.

English Heiress Reported Missing

WELLESLEY, Mass., Nov. 16.—Miss Rosemary Palmer Gilding, seventeen-year-old London, England, heiress, was strangely missing today.

The beautiful young daughter of a wealthy English banker, it became known, mysteriously vanished on Saturday from the home of Professor Emeritus Hamilton Crawford MacDougall of Wellesley College, and Mrs MacDougall.

That an elopement was responsible for the disappearance of Miss Gilding was a possible theory advanced today by police. However Professor and Mrs MacDougall said the missing girl had no boy friends to their knowledge her acquaintances on this side of the Atlantic being restricted to a few persons.

One of the most intensive searches for a missing person in the history of Massachusetts was launched in an effort to locate the girl, who disappeared on Saturday suddenly and without cause from the MacDougall home, where she was a house guest.

Professor MacDougall informed police he paid no attention to the absence of Miss Gilding for a while until it was discovered that an overnight bag with two of her dresses and a coat were gone from her room

Whether the girl diappeared of her own accord or whether she was lured away, the professor was unable to state. He could advance no possable motive for her strange disappearance She was happy and apparently in the best of spirits according to Professor MacDougall, and at no time did she appear troubled.

Farmers Deputies Capture Thief, 17

The farm of Ralph Boggs, of the Scioto Trail, seven miles south of this city, resembled the wild and woolly west Sunday shortly before noon when a posse of irate farmers and sheriff's deputies, all armed with shotguns and revolvers, surrounded a corn field on the west side of the Chesapeake & Ohio railroad tracks and arrested a youth for entering the Boggs home and stealing two watches and a ring.

The youth held in the county jail gave his name as William C. Patterson, 17, and says his home is Belle, W. Va.

Mr. Boggs, a well known farmer, had gone to the Emmit's Chapel church to return Mrs. Boggs, and a son, James, 11, to their homes, after Sunday school. He said he had been away from the house only 30 minutes. When he returned with his family a Chevrolet car, bearing Pennsylvania license tags, was parked in front of the house. Mr. Boggs asked a man sitting in the car what he wanted and he said that he was looking for a family whose name Mr. Boggs could not remember. He told the car's occupant that he knew of no such family.

DOOR "JIMMIED"

When Mr. Boggs and his wife stepped onto the front porch the driver of the car started the automobile and sped away. A 'jimmy' used to open the front door of the house was found on the porch. Both Mr. and Mrs. Boggs hurried into the house and observed that it had been ransacked. Showing much courage while her husband hurried downstairs Mrs. Boggs hurried upstairs and there found the youth. He rushed for the stairs past Mrs. Boggs and, although she grabbed at him, she could not hold him. He told her to stop or he would shoot her. That didn't deter Mrs. Boggs and she chased the youth through the back door.

He started toward the railroad tracks and Mr. Boggs, taking up his shotgun, started after the flee-

TO MOVE FAMILY

Man Has Had Wide Experience in Church Work

Rev. Leavitt C. Sherburne, for the past three years assistant to Rev. E. F. Chauncey at Trinity church, Columbus, preached his first sermon at St. Philip's Episcopal church here Sunday morning after accepting a call issued last week. Rev. Sherburne occupied the pulpit here twice before receiving the call and is well known to many members of the parish.

The new pastor succeeds Rev. B. C. Decamp who left here last June after being the church's rector for four years.

WIDE EXPERIENCE

Rev. Sherburne has had wide experience in his chosen field having received his educational degree at Kirksville, Mo., State Teachers college then taking divinity work at Tufts college and at Berkeley Divinity school, Middletown, Conn.

He is married and has one daughter. Although Rev. Sherburne has not yet obtained a residence here it is expected he will move his family to this city within the next week.

WHEAT GAINS AGAIN TODAY

Suffering Setback Last Week, Commodity Again Advances On Market.

CHICAGO, Nov. 16—Wheat, after having suffered a setback last week, resumed its upward trend on the Chicago board of trade today. At the opening, prices were 1 3-4 to 2 1-4 cents higher.

A distinct bullish sentiment was created by news that Russian wheat supplies are declining sharply. A sharp curtailment of wheat exports from Russia has resulted from decreased collections by the soviets, according to reports.

Other grains were in sympathy with wheat. Corn opened 1-2 to 1 3-4 cents higher, and oats started the day from 3-8 to 1-2 cent up.

N. & W. USES NEW SCHEDULE

Trains Changed Through This City; Service Change Not Large However.

Changes in the schedule of Norfolk & Western passenger trains, effective yesterday, was announced Monday by A. V. Osborn, local agent.

Following is the new schedule:

Southbound, No. 36 train formerly No. 26, due at 10:22 a. m.; No. 32 is due at 7:12 p. m. No. 34 formerly No. 24 is due at 10:58 p. m.;

Northbound, No. 33 formerly No. 23 is due at 6:33 a. m.; No. 31, formerly No. 33 is due at 9:23 a. m.; No. 35 formerly No. 25 is due at 4:16 p. m. This train is now 16 minutes earlier while No. 34, southbound, is 10 minutes earlier.

The others are just about the same on the schedule according to Mr. Osborn.

There are no material changes in the service with No. 31, northbound, now coming from Portsmouth instead of from Canova, W. Va., and No. 32, southbound running from Columbus to Portsmouth instead of from Columbus to Canova according to the old schedule. This train provides better service farther south however for it connects in Portsmouth with a train to Norfolk.

YOUTHS FACE COURT

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 16.—Manacled to officers on one side and embracing their girl-friends on the other, Robert Hathway of Philadelphia, and Dan Fallon of Columbus, who tried to be "big time" bank bandits, but didn't have the stuff, according to authorities, appeared before United States Commissioner in federal court here today.

More attentive to their girl-friends—one of them a striking movie-like blonde—than to the court proceedings, the two "smart fellers" each waved preliminary hearing in connection with the daring $800 post office robbery at Glouster, O., recently, in which the postmaster was kidnaped to open the post office safe.

PRISONERS PLAY GUITAR, HARMONICA

Speaking of real music, two prisoners in the Pickaway-co jail have been entertaining their colleagues in the past few days with guitar and mouth organ masterpieces.

Homer McCain, 23, in the jail for driving an automobile without the owner's consent, plays the guitar and sings and Ben Sawyer, held on a statutory charge plays the harmonica. A program of She's Coming Round the Mountain, Hand Me Down My Walking Stick and The Prisoner's Song was played Sunday evening by the boys.

Japanese Ignore Ultimatum to Evacuate Manchurian Territory

FIGHTING GOES ON

Gravity of Situation is Felt by Entire World

BULLETIN

By International News Service

The league of nations council met behind closed doors at the French foreign office late this afternoon in an effort to solve the Sino-Japanese conflict in Manchuria.

The extreme gravity of the situation created by Japan defiance of the league demand that she evacuate her troops by today caused the council to resort to secret diplomacy.

A public session lasted only twenty five minutes. Outsiders were then excluded and a private session began at 4:30 p. m. (11:30 a. m. Eastern Standard Time).

Meanwhile fighting continued on the Nonni river front General Ma Chan-Shan having rejected the Japanese ultimatum to retire which expired at noon today as an afront to Chinese soverignity.

POWERS SEEKS VENUE CHANGE

'Bluebeard' Slayer's Attorneys Claim He Can't Get Fair Trial In Case.

CLARKSBURG, W. Va., Nov. 16.—Claiming it was impossible for his client to get a fair trial in Harrison-co, J. Edgar Law, counsel for Harry F. Powers, "Bluebeard slayer," today filed a motion for a change of venue in the courtroom of Judge John C. Southern here.

State's Attorney Will E. Morris objected to presentation of argument on the motion and told the court the plea for change of venue should be accompanied by affidavits and depositions. After a short hearing, Judge Southern took under advisement the question of whether he will hear argument on the motion or order affidavits filed in support of it. He will announce his decision sometime this week, it was indicated.

Powers, who was brought from the county jail to the courthouse to be present at the proceedings, seemed thoroughly frightened as he entered the building.

HARDING'S FRIEND IS DEAD IN MARION

MARION, O., Nov. 16—An intimate friend of the late president Warren G. Harding, J. F. Prendergast, 68, was dead here today after an illness of nearly a year.

Prendergast managed the local campaign of Harding in his presidential race and was a first vice president of the Harding Memorial Association. He headed a lumber company bearing his name.

Two sons, Harold and Walter, survive. The latter is secretary to Charles G. Dawes, ambassador to England.

MERCHANTS LOSE

The Merchants lost a hard fought football game to the McArthur Independents Sunday at the latter place by a 19-2 score.

Superiority in their air attack gave the home players a margin over the visitors.

Next Sunday the locals meet Greenfield here at Heise's field.

POST TO BANQUET

Howard Hall post American Legion will have a rabbit supper at its regular meeting Wednesday evening, according to an announcement Monday by Paul H. Betz, commander. A good turn out is expected.

English Heiress Reported Missing

WELLESLEY, Mass., Nov. 16.—Miss Rosemary Palmer Gilding, seventeen-year-old London, England, heiress, was strangely missing today.

The beautiful young daughter of a wealthy English banker, it became known, mysteriously vanished on Saturday from the home of Professor Emeritus Hamilton Crawford MacDougall, of Wellesley College, and Mrs. MacDougall.

That an elopement was responsible for the disappearance of Miss Gilding was a possible theory advanced today by police. However Professor and Mrs. MacDougall said the missing girl had no boy friends to their knowledge her acquaintances on this side of the Atlantic being restricted to a few persons.

One of the most intensive searches for a missing person in the history of Massachusetts was launched in an effort to locate the girl, who disappeared on Saturday suddenly and without cause from the MacDougall home, where she was a a house guest.

Professor MacDougall informed police he paid no attention to the absence of Miss Gilding for a while, until it was discovered that an overnight bag with two of her dresses and a coat were gone from her room.

Whether the girl diappeared of her own accord, or whether she was lured away, the professor was unable to state. He could advance no possable motive for her strange disappearance. She was happy and apparently in the best of spirits, according to Professor MacDougall, and at no time did she appear troubled.

Farmers Deputies Capture Thief, 17

The farm of Ralph Boggs, of the Scioto Trail, seven miles south of this city, resembled the wild and woolly west Sunday shortly before noon when a posse of irate farmers and sheriff's deputies, all armed with shotguns and revolvers, surrounded a corn field on the west side of the Chesapeake & Ohio railroad tracks and arrested a youth for entering the Boggs home and stealing two watches and a ring.

The youth held in the county jail gave his name as William C. Patterson, 17, and says his home is Belle, W. Va.

Mr. Boggs, a well known farmer, had gone to the Emmit's Chapel church to return Mrs. Boggs, and a son, James, 11, to their homes, after Sunday school. He said he had been away from the house only 30 minutes. When he returned with his family a Chevrolet car, bearing Pennsylvania license tags, was parked in front of the house. Mr. Boggs asked a man sitting in the car what he wanted and he said that he was looking for a family whose name Mr. Boggs could not remember. He told the car's occupant that he knew of no such family.

DOOR "JIMMIED"

When Mr. Boggs and his wife stepped onto the front porch the driver of the car started the automobile and sped away. A 'jimmy' used to open the front door of the house was found on the porch. Both Mr. and Mrs. Boggs hurried into the house and observed that it had been ransacked. Showing much courage while her husband hunted downstairs Mrs. Boggs hurried upstairs and there found the youth. He rushed for the stairs past Mrs. Boggs and, although she grabbed at him, she could not hold him. He told her to stop or he would shoot her. That didn't deter Mrs. Boggs and she chased the youth through the back door.

He started toward the railroad tracks and Mr. Boggs, taking up his shotgun, started after the flee-

DAMAGE SUIT BEGINS TODAY

Attorneys Begin Task of Obtaining Jurors In Courtright-Brewer Case.

The trial of the damage suit of Mrs. Bessie Courtright of the Scioto Trail against Walter O. Brewer, Chillicothe contractor, for $10,000 as the outgrowth of an automobile wreck north of this city April 29, 1930, in which Mrs. Courtright and William Stebleton were injured, was begun in Judge Joseph W. Adkins' court Monday afternoon.

Attorneys in the case are Tom A. Renick for the plaintiff and Barton Walters for the defendant.

First on the order of the trial was the task of obtaining jurors to hear the testimony. This was expected to require the greater part of the afternoon.

Nine witnesses have been summoned by the plaintiff.

WOMAN VISITING CAVE IS INJURED

Mrs. C. W. Orr, 50, of Tippecanoe City, suffered a compound fracture of the left ankle Sunday afternoon when her foot caught in a tree root at Old Man's Cave. The injured woman was brought to Berger hospital where the fracture was reduced and her ankle placed in a cast.

She, with her husband, had motored to the cave on a sightseeing tour when the accident happened.

Murder Cycle

The tragic cycle of murder which Joseph E. Bamforth, a life prisoner at the Bridgewater, Mass., State Hospital, began 13 years ago, turned up its latest victim when he beat his daughter, Irene, 13, to death with a hammer while left alone with her for a moment at the institution. Irene was just a babe when Bamforth (above) killed his wife and his mother-in-law.

ST. PHILIP'S NEW PASTOR HERE SUNDAY

Rev. Leavitt Sherburne, Assistant to Rev. Chauncey of Columbus, Called

TO MOVE FAMILY

Man Has Had Wide Experience in Church Work

Rev. Leavitt C. Sherburne, for the past three years assistant to Rev. E. F. Chauncey at Trinity church, Columbus, preached his first sermon at St. Philip's Episcopal church here Sunday morning after accepting a call issued last week. Rev. Sherburne occupied the pulpit here twice before receiving the call and is well known to many members of the parish.

The new pastor succeeds Rev. B. C. Decamp who left here last June after being the church's rector for four years.

WIDE EXPERIENCE

Rev. Sherburne has had wide experience in his chosen field having received his educational degree at Kirksville, Mo., State Teachers college then taking divinity work at Tufts college and at Berkeley Divinity school, Middletown, Conn.

He is married and has one daughter. Although Rev. Sherburne has not yet obtained a residence here it is expected he will move his family to this city within the next week.

WHEAT GAINS AGAIN TODAY

Suffering Setback Last Week, Commodity Again Advances On Market.

CHICAGO, Nov. 16—Wheat, after having suffered a setback last week, resumed its upward trend on the Chicago board of trade today. At the opening, prices were 1 3-4 to 2 1-4 cents higher.

A distinct bullish sentiment was created by news that Russian wheat supplies are declining sharply. A sharp curtailment of wheat exports from Russia has resulted from decreased collections by the soviets, according to reports.

Other grains were in sympathy with wheat. Corn opened 1-2 to 1 3-4 cents higher, and oats started the day from 3-8 to 1-2 cent up.

MRS. McKINLEY, 79, DIES IN STERLING

Funeral services will be held Tuesday at 2 p. m. at the Mt. Sterling M. E. church for Elizabeth McKinley, aged 79, who died Sunday night at her home in that village.

HELM TO SPEAK

Lawrence Helm of Indianapolis, a railroad man in the Norfolk & Western organization, will address members of the Kiwanis club at the Boggs Hotel Monday evening using as his subject "Problems of Transportation."

F. J. BENNETT ANSWERS CALL AT HOME HERE

Man, Native of Deercreek-twp, Passes Away Early Sunday Morning

FUNERAL TUESDAY

Deceased Man Survived by Widow, Two Children

Frank Jones Bennett, aged 47, died at his home, 318 S. Court-st Sunday at 7:50 a. m. He was a life long resident of the county being born in Deercreek-twp, Feb. 3, 1884, son of the late George and Ella Jones Bennett, members of two of the country's pioneer families.

After attending the Pennington Seminary at Pennington, N. J., he returned to Circleville where he became associated with the Third National Bank. Four years later he resigned to become actively engaged in farming and came to be recognized as an authority on cattle and horses. His services as a judge were much in demand throughout the state in livestock shows. It will be recalled that

Trains Changed Through This City; Service Change Not Large However.

Changes in the schedule of Norfolk & Western passenger trains, effective yesterday, was announced Monday by A. V. Osborn, local agent.

Following is the new schedule:

Southbound, No. 36 train formerly No. 26, due at 10:22 a. m.; No. 32 is due at 7:12 p. m., No. 34 formerly No. 24 is due at 10:58 p. m.;

Northbound, No. 33 formerly No. 23 is due at 6:33 a. m.; No. 31, formerly No. 33 is due at 9:23 a. m.; No. 35 formerly No. 25 is due at 4:16 p. m. This train is now 16 minutes earlier while No. 34, southbound, is 10 minutes earlier.

The others are just about the same on the schedule according to Mr. Osborn.

There are no material changes in the service with No. 31, northbound, now coming from Portsmouth instead of from Canova, W. Va., and No. 32, southbound running from Columbus to Portsmouth instead of from Columbus to Canova according to the old schedule. This train provides better service farther south however for it connects in Portsmouth with a train to Norfolk.

YOUTHS FACE COURT

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 16.—Manacled to officers on one side and embracing their girl-friends on the other, Robert Hathway of Philadelphia, and Dan Fallon of Columbus, who tried to be "big time" bank bandits, but didn't have the stuff, according to authorities, appeared before United States Commissioner in federal court here today.

More attentive to their girl-friends—one of them a striking movie-like blonde—than to the court proceedings, the two "smart fellers" each waved preliminary hearing in connection with the daring $800 post office robbery at Glouster, O., recently, in which the postmaster was kidnaped to open the post office safe.

LEGAL NEWS FROM THE OFFICE OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL

NOT POOR RELIEF

Boards of education are not authorized by law to borrow money or to issue bonds for poor relief purposes; nor are boards of education authorized, under any circumstances, to expend public funds for poor relief purposes, as such. This was the ruling of Attorney General Gilbert Bettman in an opinion give to Cameron Meacham, prosecutor of Scioto-co.

" The authority to issue bonds and to borrow money for poor relief is extended by the terms of the act (Pringle-Roberts Bill) to municipal corporatiois, townships and counties," General Bettman said in his opinion. "School districts are not mentioned in the act and for this reason it is clear that the legislature did not intend school districts to be authorized to issue bonds for poor relief.

"There is at present no statutory authority whatever for a board of education to expend school funds for poor relief purposes," the opinion continued. "The general code sets forth in clear and unambiguous language the circumstances under which boards of education are empowered to expend school funds for text books, personal necessities and medical care for a child or for persons entitled to the services of the child in order that the child may go to school. This may be done only in case where the child is 'absolutely required to work at home and elsewhere in order to support himself or care for others legally entitled to his services'. This does not authorize the extension of poor relief as such."

VICTORY FOR STATE

"This is a helpful victory for the state of Ohio. The decision will stabilize our financial situation," Attorney General Gilbert Bettman said upon learning of the recent decision of the Ohio Supreme Court in the Columbian Building and Loan case. General Bettman, representing the state superintendent of building and loan associations, filed a petition in the Supreme Court for a writ of prohibition restraining courts of common pleas from entertaining suits for receiverships of building and loan associations except when brought at the instance of the state superintendent of building and loan associations.

OPEN FOR PUBLIC

Attorney General Gilbert Bettman, in an opinion to Robert N. Gorman, prosecuting attorney at Cincinnati, held that preliminary estimates of the valuation of real property made in connection with the sexennial appraisement of real estate for taxation, together with documents showing the valuations fixed by the county auditor, are open for public inspection not withstanding the fact that the entire assessment roll may not be made up for the board of revision.

TEETH PULLED

Teeth of organizations formed under the old "horse-thief" statutes, which permitted persons to band themselves together for the purpose of apprehending horse-thieves and other criminals, were pulled by an opinion of Attorney General Gilbert Bettman given to the Bureau of Inspection and Supervision of Public Offices.

It had been the practice for members of these organizations to establish speed traps and to arrest motorists for speeding, take them before a justice of the peace with whom they had an arrangement as to the sharing of costs. Such arrests have been made without warrants. Attorney General Bettman held that a member of such association may not arrest without a warrant a person charged with a misdemeanor, nor may such member charge in the bill of costs against the degendant for any services rendered by him.

MAY SELL INTEREST

Building and loan associations may sell prior participating interests in mortgages owned by them with the consent of the superintendent of building and loan associations when it is made to appear that such sale is necessary for the purpose of paying the debts of the association, or for the purpose of enforcing or protecting such associations' secreties and preserving its assets. Attorney General Gilbert Bettman has held in an opinion to Theodore H Tangeman, director of commerce.

REAL ESTATE BROKERS

In an opinion to the state board of real estate examiners, Attorney General Gilbert Bettman has held that this board of authority under a license of any suspend or revoke a licenses of any real estate broker who fails or refuses to remit money deposited with him as security for rent under a lease which he had no authority to make in his own name as lessor.

OHIO MAYORS TO CONVENE

Problems of Unemployment and Poor Relief to Be Discussed Nov. 28.

COLUMBUS, O. — Mayors of Ohio cities will meet Nov. 28 at Ohio State University to discuss the problems of unemployment and poor relief in Ohio during the coming winter. The conference was called by the Ohio Municipal League.

Invitations to attend the conference have been sent to 150 mayors by Prof. Harvey Walker, of the university's department of political science, who is secretary of the league. They have been invited to bring other city officials with them.

The conference will be in the form of a round-table discussion, beginning at 10 a. m. Speakers at the morning session on unemployment and public relief and their topics follow: Governor George White, "The State and Public Relief"; and Adjutant General Frank D. Henderson, "The Governor's Committee and Its Work." Mayor W. T. Jackson, of Toledo, will preside.

At a noon luncheon meeting C. A. Dykstra, city manager of Cincinnati, will discuss "The Cincinnati Plan." Fred Eichelberger, city manager of Dayton will preside at the afternoon meeting. The speaker will be Prof. H. G. Hayes, of the department of economics, Ohio State University, whose topic will be "Planning to Avert Another Depression."

At a business session later officers of the league will be elected for the coming year.

'WIZARD CONTROL' SHOWN BY BUICK

The principles of "Wizard Control" will be demonstrated at all Buick showrooms the country over when the new Buick Eight for 1932 is shown for the first time.

"Wizard Control" has aroused much discussion since the preliminary announcement of the coming of the new Buick. It results from a sensational new method of car control featuring a button-controlled automatic clutch, with improved free wheeling, and a new syncro-mesh transmission with silent second gear, said to represent the finest engineering Buick has ever attained in a unit of this kind.

The presentation includes an extensive line of twenty-six new models, the most complete line ever built by Buick, grouped in four series with smart, modish bodies by Fisher and a score of brilliant engineering features.

In the new body design, a skillful handling of the radiator lines has achieved a slim, fleet beauty, enhanced by chrome beading on the radiator shutters and chrome-plated streamline headlamps with fender parking lamps in a harmonizing design. Dual trumpet-style horns, synchronized in tone and placed on each side of the radiator below the headlamps, and door-type ventilators, instead of the usual louvres, give further luxuriousness to the design. The entire body, with these features, and the new smartly sloping windshield and easy flowing lines, presents a longer, lower custom-built appearance.

Led by Wizard Control, Buick offers many outstanding advancements for 1932. There is a newly-developed ride-regulator, easily operated while driving, by a small handle located on the steering column. It adjusts the riding qualities of the car to any type of road surface or condition, the speed of travel and the number of passengers in the car Marking a new trend is the instrument panel, with all instruments grouped at the left, directly under the eye of the driver.

WHY FISH NETS WEAR OUT

NEW YORK.—Ten million dollars a year is the figure for depreciation of fishermen's nets, according to a research report. This is approximately one-fifth of the value of the nation's annual gross catch. Powerful fish, sharks, and seals entangled in a net escape easily and demolish it, but floating debris often tears holes in a net or pulls it adrift. Storms effect even worse damage, especially if the net is fouled with marine growths. In addition, the oil and slime from fish cause the net to "heat" when it is deposited in a heap in the hold of a fishing vessel.

And No One Was Killed!

This scene of destruction wouldn't exactly create the idea that anyone in the buildings when they were torn asunder by a terrific explosion could have escaped death or serious injury, but we're telling you that they did. And it's a fact. The strewn about wreckage is all that remains of three buildings in Garrison, N. J., after a blast in one of them rocked the community for miles about in the wee small hours of the morning. A brick building, origin of the explosion, took frame structures on either side to destruction with it.

400 ENROLL AT CLUB CONGRESS

About 400 4-H club boys and girls from more than 60 Ohio counties attended the seventeenth annual 4-H club congress held at the Ohio State University last week, according to W H Palmer, state club leader at the college of agriculture

Participating in discussions on such topics as economic efficiency, healthful living, worthy home membership, art in country life, exploring careers and opportunities in rural living for young men and women, the club delegates attending the congress received a new and broader conception of the purposes of club work in the state.

I S Guthery, state director of agriculture George W Rightmire, president of the Ohio State University; Florence Allen, judge Ohio supreme court and other notables addressed the boys and girls on subjects related to club work

Club advisors attending the congress participated in a special advisor's program consisting of talks and discussions on some of the problems of rural leadership.

HENRY WEIMER HAS FINE CANDIES

Henry Weimer, Circleville's veteran candy maker is still in business and has one of the most up-to-date staple and fancy groceries in this city His store is located at 316 Watt Street. When Mr. Weimer first opened his store at this location his products offered included mostly candy and other like confections. Now he can supply any of your needs in the grocery line.

Probably Mr. Weimer's candies are the best known in Circleville and Pickaway-co. He began making candy when quite young and was employed by Mr Wittich in his store for many years. Finally he decided to start his own business and since that time has been one of the city's most successful and enterprising business men.

Besides his regular and usual products, Mr. Weimer always has a small featured product to offer, in keeping with the season of the year.

His candies are known all over the state, and his customers extend over the same area.

He asks you to visit his store on Watt-st these afternoons and try some of his ice cream specials and soft drinks.

NOW IS TIME TO PAINT---C. MYERS

With lovely fall weather prevailing, Clarence E. Myers, veteran painter and contractor of 317 S. Scioto-st, states that now is a fine time to have painting jobs done. It is particularly urged that with fall rains soon coming, now would be the best time to begin preserving the buildings by having them painted by skilled painters.

Mr. Myers himself has been in this business for a number of years and always has had experts assist him in completing a painting job. Not only is he a veteran in this art in outside painting jobs, but inside as well, and some of his past work in the city, is certainly ample proof of his skillfullness and satisfactory completion of any job.

He does not care how large or small the job be, he is always ready to give the best of service and urge that the best paint product be used

Business Review believes that Mr. Myers is deserving of the patronage of the readers of this page. His work will convince you!

CO-OP TO REWARD TON LITTER CLUB

High school boys in the 215 vocational agriculture departments over the state will be rewarded for their efforts in producing ton litters of pigs, it has been announced by the Ohio Live Stock Cooperative Association. The board of directors of the association has voted to present engraved medals to some 40 boys who are expected to qualify for the honors by feeding their litters of pigs to the 2,000 pound standard in 180 days

The medals will be awarded at the leadership conference of the Future Farmers of America, held at Ohio State University during Farmers' Week in February, according to Ray Fife, state supervisor of vocational agriculture. Since the discontinuance by the extension service of Ohio State University of ton litter work among adults in favor of "pork production projects" which involve a whole herd, the vocational agriculture and 4-H Club departments have sponsored economic production among boys through ton litter projects, Mr. Fife said.

WISE BUYING CUTS CLOTHING EXPENSE

The homemaker may make substantial savings on her clothing budget by buying clothes giving the longest wear per dollar invested rather than by purchasing garments according to price only, believes Bertha Baker, extension specialist in clothing for the department of home economics at the Ohio State University.

It is always good economy, she says, to select garments which are smart and up-to-date for the prevailing season and yet have conservative good lines which will make them usable next season.

A large part of the satisfaction derived from a garment depends upon its fit. When trying on a dress or a coat it is a good idea to note whether or not it fits comfortably or is strained across the shoulders If the garment is strained it will give way at the armseye line. Extra width across the shoulders is necessary for the active woman who drives, devotes part of her time to sports and does housework Note the length of the sleeves with the elbows bent. A sleeve which fits too snugly is likely to pull and tear out at the seam. Observe the fit at the neck and shoulders Sit down and see if there is any strain through the hips and if there is enough width and length to cover the knees gracefully

Also be sure that the dress is cut straight with the thread of the material. If not, the dress will not look neat and trim and will lose its shape. This defect, Miss Baker says, is characteristic of many cheap and bargain garments.

Durability and becomingness depend to a large extent upon the kind of material used in the garment. Here, it is best to buy clothes made from the firm, closely woven materials. The closely woven fabrics are more comfortable to wear, but they are likely to sag, lose their shape, and snag easily. Such materials may not be cheap at the lowest price because they will require considerable time and energy to keep in good repair and will give only a short period of service.

HOW TO FIND MURPHY ON THE POLICE FORCE

CHICAGO. — If you want to find a Murphy on the Chicago Police Department, your task will be easier if you also learn his age, birth date, and full name James McSweeney, secretary of the department, likes to be obliging, but when he begins to look up a Murphy on the force—well, that's a job.

Alfred Finn of 228 St Nicholas Ave., New York wrote to the department asking information on one Murphy Fortunately Mr. Finn added that he thought the Murphy he was seeking was born in County Clare, Ireland

McSweeney found exactly 50 Murphy names on the police roster, ten of them from Ireland. There were two each from Tipperary, Galway and Clare He finally decided that "County Clare No. 2" was the best address for Mr Finn.

LEGAL NEWS FROM THE OFFICE OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL

NOT POOR RELIEF

Boards of education are not authorized by law to borrow money or to issue bonds for poor relief purposes; nor are boards of education authorized, under any circumstances, to expend public funds for poor relief purposes, as such. This was the ruling of Attorney General Gilbert Bettman in an opinion give to Cameron Meacham, prosecutor of Scioto-co.

"The authority to issue bonds and to borrow money for poor relief is extended by the terms of the act (Pringle-Roberts Bill) to municipal corporatiois, townships and counties," General Bettman said in his opinion. "School districts are not mentioned in the act and for this reason it is clear that the legislature did not intend school districts to be authorized to issue bonds for poor relief.

"There is at present no statutory authority whatever for a board of education to expend school funds for poor relief purposes," the opinion continued. "The general code sets forth in clear and unambiguous language the circumstances under which boards of education are empowered to expend school funds for text books, personal necessities and medical care for a child or for persons entitled to the services of the child in order that the child may go to school. This may be done only in case where the child is 'absolutely required to work at home and elsewhere in order to support himself or care for others legally entitled to his services'. This does not authorize the extension of poor relief as such."

VICTORY FOR STATE

"This is a helpful victory for the state of Ohio. The decision will stabilize our financial situation," Attorney General Gilbert Bettman said upon learning of the recent decision of the Ohio Supreme Court in the Columbian Building and Loan case. General Bettman, representing the state superintendent of building and loan associations, filed a petition in the Supreme Court for a writ of prohibition restraining courts of common pleas from entertaining suits for receiverships of building and loan associations except when brought at the instance of the state superintendent of building and loan associations.

OPEN FOR PUBLIC

Attorney General Gilbert Bettman, in an opinion to Robert N. Gorman, prosecuting attorney at Cincinnati, held that preliminary estimates of the valuation of real property made in connection with the sexennial appraisement of real estate for taxation, together with documents showing the valuations fixed by the county auditor, are open for public inspection not withstanding the fact that the entire assessment roll may not be made up for the board of revision.

TEETH PULLED

Teeth of organizations formed under the old "horse-thief" statutes, which permitted persons to band themselves together for the purpose of apprehending horse-thieves and other criminals, were pulled by an opinion of Attorney General Gilbert Bettman given to the Bureau of Inspection and Supervision of Public Offices.

It had been the practice for members of these organizations to establish speed traps and to arrest motorists for speeding, take them before a justice of the peace with whom they had an arrangement as to the sharing of costs. Such arrests have been made without warrants. Attorney General Bettman held that a member of such association may not arrest without a warrant a person charged with a misdemeanor, nor may such member charge in the bill of costs against the degendant for any services rendered by him.

MAY SELL INTEREST

Building and loan associations may sell prior participating interests in mortgages owned by them with the consent of the superintendent of building and loan associations when it is made to appear that such sale is necessary for the purpose of paying the debts of the association, or for the purpose of enforcing or protecting such associations' secreties and preserving its assets. Attorney General Gilbert Bettman has held in an opinion to Theodore H. Tangeman, director of commerce.

REAL ESTATE BROKERS

In an opinion to the state board of real estate examiners, Attorney General Gilbert Bettman has held that this board of authority under a license of any suspend or revoke a licenses of any real estate broker who fails or refuses to remit money deposited with him as security for rent under a lease which he had no authority to make in his own name as lessor.

OHIO MAYORS TO CONVENE

Problems of Unemployment and Poor Relief to Be Discussed Nov. 28.

COLUMBUS, O. — Mayors of Ohio cities will meet Nov. 28 at Ohio State University to discuss the problems of unemployment and poor relief in Ohio during the coming winter. The conference was called by the Ohio Municipal League.

Invitations to attend the conference have been sent to 150 mayors by Prof. Harvey Walker, of the university's department of political science, who is secretary of the league. They have been invited to bring other city officials with them.

The conference will be in the form of a round-table discussion, beginning at 10 a. m. Speakers at the morning session on unemployment and public relief and their topics follow: Governor George White, "The State and Public Relief"; and Adjutant General Frank D. Henderson, "The Governor's Committee and Its Work." Mayor W. T. Jackson, of Toledo, will preside.

At a noon luncheon meeting C. A. Dykstra, city manager of Cincinnati, will discuss "The Cincinnati Plan." Fred Eichelberger, city manager of Dayton will preside at the afternoon meeting. The speaker will be Prof. H. G. Hayes, of the department of economics, Ohio State University, whose topic will be "Planning to Avert Another Depression."

At a business session later officers of the league will be elected for the coming year.

'WIZARD CONTROL' SHOWN BY BUICK

The principles of "Wizard Control" will be demonstrated at all Buick showrooms the country over when the new Buick Eight for 1932 is shown for the first time.

"Wizard Control" has aroused much discussion since the preliminary announcement of the coming of the new Buick. It results from a sensational new method of car control featuring a button-controlled automatic clutch, with improved free wheeling, and a new syncro-mesh transmission with silent second gear, said to represent the finest engineering Buick has ever attained in a unit of this kind.

The presentation includes an extensive line of twenty-six new models, the most complete line ever built by Buick, grouped in four series with smart, modish bodies by Fisher and a score of brilliant engineering features.

In the new body design, a skillful handling of the radiator lines has achieved a slim, fleet beauty, enhanced by chrome beading on the radiator shutters and chrome-plated streamline headlamps with fender parking lamps in a harmonizing design. Dual trumpet-style horns, synchronized in tone and placed on each side of the radiator below the headlamps, and door-type ventilators, instead of the usual louvres, give further luxuriousness to the design. The entire body, with these features, and the new smartly sloping windshield and easy flowing lines, presents a longer, lower custom-built appearance.

Led by Wizard Control, Buick offers many outstanding advancements for 1932. There is a newly-developed ride-regulator, easily operated while driving, by a small handle located on the steering column. It adjusts the riding qualities of the car to any type of road surface or condition, the speed of travel and the number of passengers in the car. Marking a new trend is the instrument panel, with all instruments grouped at the left, directly under the eye of the driver.

WHY FISH NETS WEAR OUT

NEW YORK.—Ten million dollars a year is the figure for depreciation of fishermen's nets, according to a research report. This is approximately one-fifth of the value of the nation's annual gross catch. Powerful fish, sharks, and seals entangled in a net escape easily and demolish it, but floating debris often tears holes in a net or pulls it adrift. Storms effect even worse damage, especially if the net is fouled with marine growths. In addition, the oil and slime from fish cause the net to "heat" when it is deposited in a heap in the hold of a fishing vessel.

It is dumb stupidity for any woman to have bad breath. It offends others—ruins you socially. The worst of it is you, yourself, never know when you have it. And No One Was Killed!

This scene of destruction wouldn't exactly create the idea that anyone in the buildings when they were torn asunder by a terrific explosion could have escaped death or serious injury, but we're telling you that they did. And it's a fact. The strewn about wreckage is all that remains of three buildings in Garrison, N. J., after a blast in one of them rocked the community for miles about in the wee small hours of the morning. A brick building, origin of the explosion, took frame structures on either side to destruction with it.

400 ENROLL AT CLUB CONGRESS

About 400 4-H club boys and girls from more than 60 Ohio counties attended the seventeenth annual 4-H club congress held at the Ohio State University last week, according to W. H. Palmer, state club leader at the college of agriculture.

Participating in discussions on such topics as economic efficiency, healthful living, worthy home membership, art in country life, exploring careers, and opportunities in rural living for young men and women, the club delegates attending the congress received a new and broader conception of the purposes of club work in the state.

I. S. Guthery, state director of agriculture; George W. Rightmire, president of the Ohio State University; Florence Allen, judge, Ohio supreme court; and other notables addressed the boys and girls on subjects related to club work.

Club advisors attending the congress participated in a special advisor's program consisting of talks and discussions on some of the problems of rural leadership.

HENRY WEIMER HAS FINE CANDIES

Henry Weimer, Circleville's veteran candy maker is still in business and has one of the most up-to-date staple and fancy groceries in this city. His store is located at 316 Watt Street. When Mr. Weimer first opened his store at this location his products offered included mostly candy and other like confections. Now he can supply any of your needs in the grocery line.

Probably Mr. Weimer's candies are the best known in Circleville and Pickaway-co. He began making candy when quite young and was employed by Mr. Wittich in his store for many years. Finally he decided to start his own business and since that time has been one of the city's most successful and enterprising business men.

Besides his regular and usual products, Mr. Weimer always has a small featured product to offer, in keeping with the season of the year.

His candies are known all over the state, and his customers extend over the same area.

He asks you to visit his store on Watt-st these afternoons and try some of his ice cream specials and soft drinks.

NOW IS TIME TO PAINT---C. MYERS

With lovely fall weather prevailing, Clarence E. Myers, veteran painter and contractor of 317 S. Scioto-st, states that now is a fine time to have painting jobs done. It is particularly urged that with fall rains soon coming, now would be the best time to begin preserving the buildings by having them painted by skilled painters.

CHAMP WRESTLER SHOWS HERE FRIDAY

One of the best wrestling shows which has ever been seen in Circleville will be sponsored by the Howard Hall Post American Legion next Friday evening in Memorial Hall at 8 o'clock, according to an announcement today. Frank Davis, S. Court-st, who promoted wrestling and boxing programs at Evert's Arena throughout the summer is matchmaker of the show and has booked a real card.

The main go will feature Claude Swindell of Lincoln, Neb., the world's lightweight champion, against Chuck Nelson of Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, railroad champion. This match will go two falls to a finish. This is the first time a world's champion has ever been brought to Circleville and he will be opposed by Nelson, who fans saw throw Gypsy Joe Snyder in a match this past summer.

The semi-final which will go one fall with an hour limit will see Hal Spang of Logan and Gypsy Joe Snyder of Columbus climb between the ropes to do battle. Both are clever men in the mat game and will undoubtedly put on a good match.

The other go brings together Ray Phillips of Columbus and Lou Evans of Portsmouth. They will go one fall with a hal.-hour limit.

American Legion members are selling tickets for the show, which are priced 75 cents down stairs and 50 cents in the gallery. The regular 10c admission for children will also prevail. This is a benefit show for the Legion and a large crowd is expected.

In Collegiate Grid Tempest

Reed Harris, editor-in-chief of the Spectator, Columbia University (New York) daily newspaper, whose strongly worded editorials accusing collegiate football of being a "semi-professional racket" have started a tempest in university gridiron circles, has promised that even though he was threatened by Ralph Hewitt (inset) with a "beating up" he will continue to expose "paid athletes." Hewitt is captain of the 1931 Columbia football team.

OHIO CHAMPS ARE CROWNED

Ohio University and Muskingum Top Respective Fields to Gain Titles.

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 16. — Championship flags, denoting supremacy over widely different domains, floated above the football camps at Ohio U., Muskingum, Western Reserve and Hiram today.

Dispute may arise over the supremacy of Muskingum and Western Reserve in the respective fields but as to the championship caliber of Ohio U. and Hiram there can be no question.

THIRD TITLE

"Butch" Grover's Ohio U. team clattered into its third straight title in the Buckeye conference, mauling Miami, 13 to 0.

Hiram clinched the cellar championship of the state when it met Capital, which also had not won a game this season, and was humiliated, 13 to 0.

An 85-yard run for a touchdown by Sheldon Franz, when only a minute remained to play in the first half, marked Reserve's 9 to 6 win over Case to give Reserve the championship of Cleveland.

By crushing Ashland, 24 to 0, little Muskingum kept its undefeated record unmarred and won recognition as the champion of the Ohio conference.

Some kind of a title also seemed to be due Wittenberg, which smashed Marshall college, 27 to 13, and remained in the underfeated group. The Lutherans played open football on a muddy field and got away with it.

Lop-sided victories were scored by Cincinnati and Ohio Wesleyan in games which held no championships. The Bearcats riddled the Heidelberg line, winning 46 to 7, and the Bishops, using three teams, slaughtered Wabash, 60 to 0.

Of the games remaining on the schedule this week, Dayton's tilt with Wittenberg Saturday will be outstanding. Miami goes to Cincinnati, Denison plays at Wooster and DePauw meets Wabash. Wesleyan, idle Saturday, will play at Western Reserve Thanksgiving day.

PRESNELL'S PASSES FEATURE SPARTAN GAME; CHAMPS LOSE

Ohio Professional Grid Team Less Than Half Game Behind Green Bay After Sunday Contest; McKalip and Alford On Receiving End of Nebraska Star's Heaves Against Cleveland.

Racing out eagerly on the gridiron at the start of the game, eleven young men from Portsmouth, never stopped running and charging at Redland Field Cincinnati until they had rolled up two touchdowns on the Cleveland Indians, while holding them to one, and thus maintained second place in the National Professional Football league. Approximately 4,500 spectators witnesses the contest. The score was 14 to 6.

The Indians were first to score. After Harry "Hoge" Workman, former Ohio State star, and Otto Vokaty, former Heidelberg University's All-Ohio full back, had carried the leather to the Portsmouth Spartan's nine-yard line, Algy Clark tore around left end on a single reverse for a touchdown. The blocking on this play was perfect. Workman's kick for the extra point was wide.

While the Indians were successful in stopping Tony Holm, former All-American full back from Alabama, and "Father" Lumpkin, on line smashes, they couldn't quite cope with the aerial bombardment the Spartans opened up with in the closing minutes of the first quarter.

Glenn Presnell, former Nebraska University all-American quarter back, and probably one of the greatest all-round professional football players in the game today, put the Spartans in the lead when he whipped a beautiful 28-yard pass into the outstretched hands of Bill McKalip, rangy and nimble-footed left end of the Portsmouth team. Bill shook off two would-be Indian tacklers and rambled 42 yards for the score. Presnell added the extra point with a placement kick.

Portsmouth pushed over their second and final touchdown shortly after the start of the second quarter, and as usual, Mr. Presnell played a prominent part in this score also.

This touchdown march started when Randolph, center intercepted an Indian pass on the Cleveland team's 45-yard line. Lumpkin and Alford carried the leather to the Indians' 30-yard line on four plays.

Presnell then caught the Indians asleep at the switch, so to speak, when he whipped a 30-yard bullet-like pass to Gene Alford over the goal-line for a touchdown.

Not a Cleveland man was within 10 yards of the former Texas Tech speedster as he received the leather and touched it to the ground for the final score of the game. It might also be mentioned that Presnell also added the extra point with another placement kick.

CHICAGO, Nov. 16 — Ernie Nevers' Chicago Cardinals today held the distinctional football leaheld the distinction of having handed the Green Bay Packers football league champions, their first defeat of the current season. An effective aerial attack was the Cardinals' principal weapon in trouncing the Packers, 21 to 13, at Wrigley Field yesterday. Nevers was the main cog in the Cardinal machine. A few minutes after the opening whistle he bulleted a pass into the arms of left end Creighton, who, behind perfect interference, trotted 24 yards for the first touchdown.

BIG TEN GAMES WILL ASSIST UNEMPLOYED OF MIDDLE WEST

Ohio State Gridders To Meet Minnesota at Minneapolis on Nov. 28; Purdue and Northwestern to Tangle and So Will Wisconsin and Michigan.

By WEST PETERSON

CHICAGO, Nov. 16.—Between $750,000 and $1,000,000 will be raised for the relief of the unemployed by big ten post-season football games, it was estimated today.

The schedule for the charity contests, worked out here yesterday at a meeting of coaches and athletic directors with Maj. John L. Griffith, conference athletic commissioner, follows:

Nov. 28—Northwestern vs. Purdue at Soldier Field, Chicago.

Nov. 28—Michigan vs. Wisconsin at Ann Arbor.

Nov. 28—Ohio State vs. Minnesota at Minneapolis.

Thanksgiving Day — At Stagg field, Chicago, Chicago and Iowa will play one-half a game, Indiana and Illinois will play one-half a game, and a third half-game will be played by the winners of the first two contests.

BEAR ON TITLES

The charity games will be the same as regular season tilts in regard to the championship. This factor will guarantee a record gate at the Northwestern-Purdue game, for the boilermakers have a good chance to upset the Wildcats, thus far undefeated.

It had been expected that Northwestern would be matched against Michigan, but the coaches decided it would be "poor business" not to use the facilities of the Wolverines' gaint stadium at Ann Arbor.

Money taken in through the charity program will be pro-rated among the seven states in which the big ten schools are situated, Indiana, Illinois, Michigan, Ohio, Wisconsin, Iowa and Minnesota, the division will be according to official population figures.

The Ohio-Minnesota combat should be well-attended, as the two teams are considered evenly matched. The Wisconsin-Michigan game also ought to be a drawing card, as Wisconsin has displayed brilliance this season despite the fact it has lost two loop encounters.

Decision of the big ten to hold the post-season program was in response to an appeal by President Hoover's committee on relief.

The question of whether Northwestern would travel to the coast to meet Southern California on Jan. 1, as has been proposed, was not discussed at the meeting yesterday, it was announced.

"OHIO BETTER THAN SCORE," SAYS FESLER

Completely Outclassed Wisconsin Team; Praises Cramer's Work.

BY WESLEY FESLER
Written Especially for International News Service and The Herald.

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 16.—Saturday afternoon just after the Ohio-Wisconsin game, a reporter from one of the Madison newspapers approached me and asked:

"Do you think Ohio State deserved to win?"

The question floored me. He must be kidding, I thought. And so. . .

Well, outside of keeping the ball in Badger territory practically all the game, blocking two kicks, scoring one touchdown, just falling short of scoring two others, and completing four out of five passes for nice gains, and a few other things, the Ohionans did not do much, I said. Maybe they did not deserve to win.

The reporter looked at a companion with a sort of sickly grin but he was still game and so he tried another.

"Do you think Ohio deserved its touchdown?"

Well, now I ask you! But I played the game . . .

BLOCKED TWO KICKS

Let he think, I said. To consider it again, I don't believe it did. Wisconsin had possession of the ball on about their 20 yard line when Gilman broke through and blocked their punt. Wisconsin recovered and tried to punt again. This time Varner blocked the kick and Bell recovered over the goal line for the touchdown. It isn't good football to block punts, especially when you recover them for touchdowns. The Ohio boys didn't deserve to get that touchdown. Varner and Gilman were playing dumb football when they blocked those punts and Bell was away out of position when he recovered the ball. He wasn't playing "heads-up" football at all.

The reporter looked at his companion again and left without a word. He must have caught on.

Do I think the Bucks deserved to win? Now, I ask you again!

Everyone of the Bucks played a whale of a game and showed the Wisconsin players some Ohio fight that's spelled f-i-g-h-t.

The game started out as though it was going to be a regular dogfight and it ended that way. Both teams fought to the last ditch and Wisconsin, although being a little outclassed, showed that typical Badger spirit and made things plenty interesting for the Buckeyes.

Too much credit cannot be given to Ohio's little quarterback. He performed one of the prettiest exhibitions of punting I have ever seen. None of Cramer's kicks traveled astounding distances, but practically all of them went out of bounds at the point of their maximum distance.

BUCKEYES AND ILLINOIS MEET

Zuppke's Team, Much-Trampled, Might Be the One To Surprise Ohio Squad.

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 17.—A football rivalry dating back to 1902 will be renewed here Saturday when Ohio State and Illinois meet in the Ohio Stadium. This game will mark the twentieth time that elevens from the two schools have met in football.

At present Illinois holds a margain of 11 victories to six for Ohio State, with two ties. The scores follow:

1902—Ohio State 0; Illinois 0.
1904—Illinois 46; Ohio State 0.
1914—Illinois 37; Ohio State 0.
1915—Ohio State 3; Illinois 3.
1916—Ohio State 7; Illinois 6.
1917—Ohio State 13; Illinois 0.
1918—Illinois 13; Ohio State 0.
1919—Illinois 9; Ohio State 7.
1920—Ohio State 7; Illinois 0.
1921—Illinois 7; Ohio State 0.
1922—Ohio State 6; Illinois 3.
1923—Illinois 9; Ohio State 0.
1924—Illinois 7; Ohio State 0.
1925—Illinois 14; Ohio State 9.
1926—Ohio State 7; Illinois 6.
1927—Illinois 13; Ohio State 0.
1928—Illinois 8; Ohio State 0.
1929—Illinois 27; Ohio State 0.
1930—Ohio State 12; Illinois 9.

Ohio State followers, in spite of previous showings of both teams which might indicate a Buckeye victory, anticipate a battle from start to finish. Time after time in other years when one of the pair has been conceded victory in advance, the dope bucket has been upset.

GAMES SENSATIONAL

In 1916, Ohio State won its first Western Conference championship by virtue of a last minute 7 to 6 victory. Three years later, Illinois snatched the championship out of the grasp of the Buckeyes by scoring in the last eight seconds of play, winning 9 to 7. Ohio State came back in 1920 to complete a forward pass for victory after the final whistle had blown. An unexpected victory for the Illini in 1921 dimmed Ohio's hopes for the Western Conference crown.

Game time will be 2 o'clock Eastern standard time. Some 12,000 general admission tickets for the game will be placed on sale at $1 at 9 a. m. Saturday.

Competing with farm boys and girls from 44 states for national honors in 4-H club work, club champions in Ohio will represent some 42,000 young people when they attend the tenth national 4-H club congress at Chicago, Nov. 30 to Dec. 3.

DETECTIVE DIVORCED

CHICAGO. — Revelations of the private life of a private detective won Mrs. Dorothy C. Becker her freedom fro mher 'detectaffing' husband, Clarence Becker. Judge Joseph Sabath granted Mrs. Becker a divorce after she explained that it took most of her stenographer's salary to keep him out of jail. As the final reason for a divorce, Mrs. Becker said her husband had struck her because she had remonstrated with him over his fondness for liquor.

CHAMP WRESTLER SHOWS HERE FRIDAY

One of the best wrestling shows which has ever been seen in Circleville will be sponsored by the Howard Hall Post American Legion next Friday evening in Memorial Hall at 8 o'clock, according to an announcement today. Frank Davis, S. Court-st, who promoted wrestling and boxing programs at Evert's Arena throughout the summer is matchmaker of the show and has booked a real card.

The main go will feature Claude Swindell of Lincoln, Neb., the world's lightweight champion, against Chuck Nelson of Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania railroad champion. This match will go two falls to a finish. This is the first time a world's champion has ever been brought to Circleville and he will be opposed by Nelson, who fans saw throw Gypsy Joe Snyder in a match this past summer.

The semi-final which will go one fall with an hour limit will see Hal Spang of Logan and Gypsy Joe Snyder of Columbus climb between the ropes to do battle. Both are clever men in the mat game and will undoubtedly put on a good match.

The other go brings together Ray Phillips of Columbus and Lou Evans of Portsmouth. They will go one fall with a hal.-hour limit.

American Legion members are selling tickets for the show, which are priced 75 cents down stairs and 50 cents in the gallery. The regular 10c admission for children will also prevail. This is a benefit show for the Legion and a large crowd is expected.

In Collegiate Grid Tempest

Reed Harris, editor-in-chief of the Spectator, Columbia University (New York) daily newspaper, whose strongly worded editorials accusing collegiate football of being a "semi-professional racket" have started a tempest in university gridiron circles, has promised that even though he was threatened by Ralph Hewitt (inset) with a "beating up" he will continue to expose "paid athletes." Hewitt is captain of the 1931 Columbia football team.

OHIO CHAMPS ARE CROWNED

Ohio University and Muskingum Top Respective Fields to Gain Titles.

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 16. — Championship flags, denoting supremacy over widely different domains, floated above the football camps at Ohio U., Muskingum, Western Reserve and Hiram today.

Dispute may arise over the supremacy of Muskingum and Western Reserve in the respective fields but as to the championship caliber of Ohio U. and Hiram there can be no question.

Let he think, I said. To consider it again, I don't believe it did. Wisconsin had possession of the ball on about their 20 yard line when Gilman broke through and blocked their punt. Wisconsin recovered and tried to punt again. This time Varner blocked the kick and Bell recovered over the goal line for the touchdown. It isn't good football to block punts, especially when you recover them for touchdowns. The Ohio boys didn't deserve to get that touchdown. Varner and Gilman were playing dumb football when they blocked those punts and Bell was away out of position when he recovered the ball. He wasn't playing "heads-up" football at all.

The reporter looked at his companion again and left without a word. He must have caught on.

Do I think the Bucks deserved to win? Now, I ask you again!

Everyone of the Bucks played a whale of a game and showed the Wisconsin players some Ohio fight that's spelled f-i-g-h-t.

The game started out as though it was going to be a regular dog-fight and it ended that way. Both teams fought to the last ditch and Wisconsin, although being a little outclassed, showed that typical Badger spirit and made things plenty interesting for the Buckeyes.

Too much credit cannot be given to Ohio's little quarterback. He performed one of the prettiest exhibitions of punting I have ever seen. None of Cramer's kicks traveled astounding distances, but practically all of them went out of bounds at the point of their maximum distance.

BUCKEYES AND ILLINOIS MEET

Zuppke's Team, Much-Trampled, Might Be the One To Surprise Ohio Squad.

COLUMBUS, O., Nov. 17.—A football rivalry dating back to 1902 will be renewed here Saturday when Ohio State and Illinois meet in the Ohio Stadium. This game will mark the twentieth time that elevens from the two schools have met in football.

At present Illinois holds a margain of 11 victories to six for Ohio State, with two ties. The scores follow:

1902—Ohio State 0; Illinois 0.
1904—Illinois 46; Ohio State 0.
1914—Illinois 37; Ohio State 0.
1915—Ohio State 3; Illinois 3.
1916—Ohio State 7; Illinois 6.
1917—Ohio State 13; Illinois 0.
1918—Illinois 13; Ohio State 0.
1919—Illinois 9; Ohio State 7.
1920—Ohio State 7; Illinois 0.
1921—Illinois 7; Ohio State 0.
1922—Ohio State 6; Illinois 3.
1923—Illinois 9; Ohio State 0.
1924—Illinois 7; Ohio State 0.
1925—Illinois 14; Ohio State 9.
1926—Ohio State 7; Illinois 6.
1927—Illinois 13; Ohio State 0.
1928—Illinois 8; Ohio State 0.
1929—Illinois 27; Ohio State 0.
1930—Ohio State 12; Illinois 9.

Ohio State followers, in spite of previous showings of both teams which might indicate a Buckeye victory, anticipate a battle from start to finish. Time after time in other years when one of the pair has been conceded victory in advance, the dope bucket has been upset.

GAMES SENSATIONAL

In 1916, Ohio State won its first Western Conference championship by virtue of a last minute 7 to 6 victory. Three years later, Illinois snatched the championship out of the grasp of the Buckeyes by scoring in the last eight seconds of play, winning 9 to 7. Ohio State came back in 1920 to complete a forward pass for victory after the final whistle had blown. An unexpected victory for the Illini in 1921 dimmed Ohio's hopes for the Western Conference crown.

Game time will be 2 o'clock Eastern standard time. Some 12,000 general admission tickets for the game will be placed on sale at $1 at 9 a. m. Saturday.

Competing with farm boys and girls from 44 states for national honors in 4-H club work, club champions in Ohio will represent some 42,000 young people when they attend the tenth national 4-H club congress at Chicago, Nov. 30 to Dec. 3.

DETECTIVE DIVORCED

CHICAGO. — Revelations of the private life of a private detective won Mrs. Dorothy C. Becker her freedom fro mher "detectaffing" husband, Clarence Becker. Judge Joseph Sabath granted Mrs. Becker a divorce after she explained that it took most of her stenographer's salary to keep him out of jail. As the final reason for a divorce, Mrs. Becker said her husband had struck her because she had remonstrated with him over his fondness for liquor.

Hypertrophists All

"HYPERTROPHY" is the name given by a university scientist to the disease which afflicts "any one who becomes fanatical in his love for a particular sport." He describes it as a growth.

This undoubtedly represents an advance in science, but it will not detract from the enthusiasm of a fan to know what ails him when he is shouting himself hoarse at a football game in which his team is winning. Neither will his calling it a disease cause golfers to trade their bags of clubs for a tennis outfit.

Devotion to a particular sport is almost a national characteristic of the American people. Hence, they must be a race of hypertrophists. That individual is rare who divides his love equally between two or more sports.

However, does it not follow naturally, logically and scientifically that those who devote themselves to a particular phase of literature, art, music, work or science are equally unbalanced? Those afflicated with a mania for one of the several branches of sport will suspect that the discoverer of hypertrophy was talking in self-defense or to ease his own mind when he concluded that the mental hypertrophists suffer fewer ill effects from the disease than do the physical hypertrophists. The former are, it may be said, delightfully unbalanced, while the latter are victims of corns, bunions, boils, sore throats, athletic hearts and Charley horses.

That new human malady, however, will not keep one of the million of football enthusiasts away from Saturday's game and will not make organized baseball a losing business next season. Before that will come about the discoverer of hypertrophy will have to do some missionary work in those universities and colleges where compulsory physical training is deemed necessary to prevent mental hypertrophy.

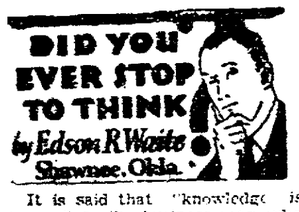
Unmorality

OF the fourteen bloody years since 1914, four were years of wholesale international butchery and destruction, and the other ten have been characterized abroad by bloody revolution, anarchy and civil war and in this county by crimes of peculiar ruthlessness, indicative, in many cases of extraordinary and startling psychology.

The Scriptural phrase "possessed of devils" seems to come nearest to describing the state of mind of some of these criminals. What seems to have happened to a large number of these offenders is not merely an apparent mental return to the accepted slaughter code of the jungle as one of the unquestioned rights of human association for self-preservation and self-advancement. The reversion to the primitive tiger law of life is not a new phenomenon in any country. But the thing that is significant is the apparently widespread elimination of moral standards and moral sense among persons supposedly of a higher type than professional social outlaws.

It is commonly supposed, and probably with some reason, that thousands of automobiles are burned or "stolen" each year for the insurance. Fire insurance is also the provocation for many incendiary fires in buildings. In the eyes of everybody but themselves these people are criminals. In certain circles it is virtually recognized as a legitimate trade custom. And yet many of those who indorse it would balk at committing crime in any other form.



It is said that "knowledge is power," so the business man who is equipped with a comprehensive knowledge of the peoples' customs and wants is a persistent newspaper advertiser, and by so doing enjoys a good business.

The persistent advertiser realizes that good will contributes to business success and that it can be obtained only by dependable and satisfactory service.

When trade is poor the motto of every firm that has something to sell should be advertising and more advertising.

Economy ceases to be economy when it is applied to the money that should be put aside for newspaper advertising. The wise business man knows this and intensifies his advertising in a manner calculated to appeal to the advertising in a manner calculated to appeal to the widest possible number of potential customers.

This can be done only by newspaper advertising.

"The CZARINA'S RUBIES"

by Sidney Warwick

© 1931, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

READ THIS FIRST

Katharine Faring is the rightful owner of the Czarina rubies, hidden when her grandfather, Prince Murinov, was slain by a revlutionary mob. Her friend, Frank Severn, goes to Russia, finds them and entrusts them to Paul Federoff, who reaches England, only to be slain at a country place called Monksilver.

Severn returns and hides himself at his own country home, Beggar's Court, and calls upon his friend Jim Wynter for help. However, he is kidnaped before Wynter can reach him.

Katharine, once a successful violinist, has given up her career because of an injury to her wrist. She is poor. Jim Wynter rescues her from the unwelcome attentions of Lester Malin, who has money, but no morals. Wynter tells her of Severn's kidnaping and she suggests that the unfortunate man may be held prisoner at Monksilver, where she believes the rubies are hidden. Wynter resolves to go there immediately.

NOW GO ON

CHAPTER XIV

Struck down and dying at Monksilver, Federoff had yet managed with failing strength, to write two words, a veiled message with a particular significance for Severn. Two words in Russian:

"Still safe."

"Still safe in some secret hiding place at Monksilver, those jewels," Jim Wynter said to himself thoughtfully, as the taxi crossed the river by Hammersmith Bridge. "If only I could hope that poor old Severn would come safely through too!"

Severn had told Katharine he was leaving Vienna immediately for Paris, there to cross by air to England. That he had already booked his passage by telegram with one of the cross-Channel air services, and would see her almost as soon as his letter reached her.

Why had Frank Severn failed to keep his word? And not only had he not come then. From that day till this Katharine had no further word of him.

Could Severn have made that proposed flight to England five weeks ago—and then something untoward [illegible] happened to him over [illegible] Wynter wondered. It should be [illegible] to find out. [illegible] the Embassy people if he [illegible] for that date, or if he did [illegible] over.

Yet if he had crossed them as arranged, surely Severn have failed to let Katharine know that he was in [illegible] Severn had only just arrived in England . . . a man all [illegible] Sant had said, a man [illegible] in the rack of some unknown fear.

FEAR

Fear—the last word Wynter would ever have thought of associating with Frank Severn! Yet that letter that had taken him down to Beggar's Court last night had seemed to bear out Sant's words.

"Except for Sant and the servants here, you are the only one who knows I am in England," Severn had written, "no one else must have as much as an inkling. Jim, I want to see you urgently—I may need your help. Put off any engagement, only for God's sake, come!"

What a bewildering mystery it was! Where had Severn been during those five weeks of silence between his letter to Katharine and his secret return to England three nights ago? And above all, what had happened last night at Beggar's Court?

Would a clue be forthcoming at Monksilver?

That writing on the torn playing card—traced there by whom or in what circumstances he had no means of knowing. . . . The murder at Monksilver weeks ago of the man had been Severn's secret messenger from Russia. . . . The probability that those almost priceless jewels were still midden within its four walls; everything pointed to that house by the river as being bound up with last night's sinister mystery.

He had left Katharine full of anxious suspense.

"It was for my sake Frank undertook that dangereous mission. I shall never forgive myself if he has come to any harm. Those men who followed the jewels from Russia murdered Federoff for them—it can only be that Frank has fallen into those evil hands!"

It looked very much as though her conviction was right.

A sudden grimness tightened Jim Wynter's mouth. Well, perhaps these unknown antagonists weren't going to have things all their own way!

It was striking midnight as the taxi ran through Barnes into the Lower Richmond road. Not far off now.

IMPULSIVE ACT

It was a late hour to present himself at Monksilver; Wynter realized that he had acted a trifle impulsively in not waiting until the morning, and might have let himself in for a fruitless journey. If there was a caretaker there the man won't probably have locked up for the night and gone to bed; he might even find the place shut up and utterly deserted. Wynter gave a little shrug. In any case he and Sant would come tomorrow—and perhaps the police. Here at Monksilver, if anywhere, he was convinced, the clue to Frank Severn's disappearance was to be sought . . . this place linked with the lost Czarina Rubies.

Would those jewels, cursed as it by some haunting fatality, ever reach Katharine? To be the rightful inheritor of those almost priceless stones—and to be in such straits of need as he knew her to be! What a queer irony of fate it was!

Wynter's thoughts went back pitifully to this girl, into whose life so much tragedy had crept . . . Those [illegible] months of terror and peril in Russia . . . and then after a brief taste of amazing success, her maimed career, the cup struck from her lips.

"I'm glad chance has flung us together again," Jim Wynter said to himself suddenly, "and now when she so needs a friend she can count on."

It was just then that that motor-lorry thrust itself upon his consciousness with exciting abruptness as if out of the blue, its driver choosing that moment to swing out suddenly from a side turning in optimistic regardlessness of main road traffic.

The driver of Wynter's taxi, swerving sharply, avoided collision by bare inches; unluckily the swerve ended in a skid on the wet roadway, and the taxi crashed into a lamp standard. The suddenly sobered lorry driver had jammed on his brakes, and in so doing skidded, too, to fall foul of another car.

Neither Wynter nor the taximan was much the worse beyond a bad shaking, but the taxi itself, its radiator smashed in, was left a total loss.

Jim Wynter disentangled himself from the wrecked taxi; to give his name and address to a constable, as well as his account of the accident, which was caustic enough to make the lorry-driver's face redden.

A FAMILIAR FACE

Since his presence on the scene seemed no longer necessary, after thrusting a ten-shilling note for his fare on the taximan, Wynter was about to push his way through the crowd to resume his interrupted journey.

And at that same moment, suddenly revealed by the light of a street lamp on a passing car, a face flashed out to his eyes from the night—Frank Severn's face!

A face strangely changed from when Wynter had seen it last, haggard and gray with a queer pallor almost like that of a man unconscious or drugged, the eyes closed—but Frank Severn beyond all doubt!

And the face of the man driving the car seemed vaguely familiar, too, though in the first startled moment Jim Wynter could not have said why. Then suddenly the explanation flashed across him.

"Creyke!"

He knew the man now! The driver was the younger manservant whom he had seen at Beggar's Court last night.

Then before Wynter could pull himself out of that first moment of bewildered surprise to push his way through the crowd, the car, clear of obstacles again, had accelerated and shot forward. And Wynter was left staring after it helplessly.

His eyes followed the car, full of impatient chagrin as this amazing chance that had been too fleeting for him to profit by slipped past.

"But Creyke's driving to Monksilver—must be!" he said to himself suddenly.

Monksilver, of course! There could hardly be any other explanation of the coincidence of running across the missing man so near that house. The car that had eluded him now he would find at Monksilver! What luck that he had acted on the impulse to go to that house tonight!

What part was Creyke playing in this queer, inexplicable drama? Creyke, like the other servants at Beggar's Court, had professed himself completely in the dark respecting the mystery of Severn's disappearance—and yet tonight he was driving the missing man to Monksilver!

Education, Cleanliness Rout Dread Typhus Fever

This Disease Is Becoming Rare as the World's Living Conditions Improve, Says Dr. Copeland, Describing the Infection and Treatment

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States Senator from New York.
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

TYPHUS fever is a disease associated with filth and unhygienic surroundings. It is easy to understand why this disease was so prevalent in the days of poor sanitation and unspeakable living conditions.

Dr. Copeland

Somebody has said, "The history of typhus is the history of human wretchedness." This is a true statement. As civilization and education have spread over the earth, this disease has greatly decreased.

Typhus fever is often confused with typhoid fever. But the diseases are quite different and run different courses.

Typhus fever is an acute infection usually considered to be caused by a germ carried by lice. In this country, however, it is a rarity for the disease to be spread by lice. Some scientists believe the disease may be transmitted by some other insect.

A recent writer suggests that typhus may be spread from infected rats by the rat mite. According to his investigation, it was found that many patients with typhus fever have been bitten by rats.

These rats are usually found in the South. They carry so-called tropical rat mites, which they transmit by their bites. With a better understanding of the actual cause it is hoped to wipe out this disease.

As in typhoid, there is constant fever which lasts about two weeks. A reddish rash appears on the skin, from the third to the fifth day. It differs from typhoid fever in that it rarely results in complications. However, really serious cases of typhus fever are occasionally seen.

This disease is more common in Europe than in this country. The last epidemic we had was in 1893. Since then, only occasional cases have been reported. When seen in this country, it is usually found in recently arrived immigrants.

The prevention of the disease is largely a matter of personal cleanliness. It is also a problem related to the economic welfare. Dark, crowded unsanitary homes are favorable to infection with typhus fever.

The general management of typhus fever is very similar to that of typhoid fever. It consists essentially of good nursing, proper food, and isolation of the patient.

It is very important that the patient be removed from actual contact with other people, so that the disease will not be spread. Where the temperature is mild and the climate suitable, it is best to treat these patients in the open air.

With complete understanding of the disease, particularly as to its cause, this disease will no longer be encountered. It is more and more rare.

Answers to Health Queries

Chronicle Reader. Q. — What causes nervousness? Would a nerve specialist be of help in such a case? Would nervousness cause a tightness of the spinal region?

A.—Nervousness can usually be traced to some underlying source. Try to locate the exact cause first of all. A nerve specialist might be most helpful under the circumstances. Yes, since this is the nerve center.

J. B. Q.—What are among the symptoms of diabetes and how can it be treated?

A.—Excessive thirst, abnormal appetite, loss of weight, nervousness are all apt to be present under the circumstances. Proper diet and general care will usually bring about relief. See your doctor and he will outline specific treatment.

Q.—Will you advise what can be done for varicose veins without having to resort to operation?

A.—For full particulars send a self-addressed, stamped envelope and repeat your question.

KINGSTON

Misses Florence Kyle and Margaret Snow of Columbus, were Armistice Day visitors of Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Wood.

The Ne Plus Ultra Sunday school class will meet on Tuesday evening, Nov. 17, at the home of Mrs. Dennis H. Dreisbach at 7:30 o'clock. Assistant hostesses are Mrs. Ray Carr, Mrs. Emma May, Mrs. Royal S. Triplett and Mrs. O. E. Gibson.

Mr. and Mrs. Dane Ellis and sons John and Tom, had for their guests on Sunday, Mr. and Mrs. Ross Alkire and son Ross, Jr., and Mr. and Mrs. Fred Young and children Mary Besse Carolyn and Marjorie Anne, of Mt. Sterling.

Mrs. Jesse Brundige spent Wednesday afternoon with Mrs. Ernest Brundige and son Dan in Chillicothe and Miss Josephine Brundige, Mrs. Robert Brundige, Mrs. H. S. Boggs, Mrs. Carrie Holderman and Miss Mildred Holderman attended the show at Majestic Theatre starring Lawrence Tibbett in "The Cuban Love Song."

A splendid meeting was held for the school students on Wednesday evening in the Presbyterian church. The high school orchestra played two numbers, and Miss Olive Dixon sang a sacred song accompanied by Robert Rittenour. The Glee Club also rendered several selections. The Rev. Willis' subject was "Smashing the Tables."

Mr. and Mrs. M. P. Jones were the six o'clock dinner guests of Dr. and Mrs. C. C. Hatfield on Tuesday. Mr. and Mrs. Jones occupy the farm owned by Mrs. Ella Thomas and they were called here by her death on Tuesday.

Mrs. Francis Snyder spent Wednesday with Mrs. Maxwell Dearth and family in Chillicothe.

Mrs. Abbie Barr of Circleville visited her sister Mrs. W. D. Wood on Tuesday.

For President

Mrs. Eva Augusta Lindbergh Christie (above), [illegible] of Col. Charles A. Lindbergh, may be named the presidential candidate of a third party to be organized in Omaha, Neb., December 1. Mrs. Christie helped her father, the late Congressman Lindbergh, in many political battles in Minnesota. She is the editor of a farmer-labor paper in Red Lake Falls, Minn.

Now Showing At The Cliftona

AT THE GRAND

"I Like Your Nerve," First National's second starring vehicle for Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., will be seen at the Cliftona Theatre tomorrow and Wednesday. The personable screen favorite appears as a happy-go-lucky American in Central America—supposedly on business—but in reality on love and adventure bent.

Lovely Loretta Young, is the senorita who captivates the irresponsible youth—causes him to quell a revolution—capsize the citizenry of more than one tropical village as he whirls through in his high-powered car—steals a march on a dishonest minister of finance, Highjack a gang of kidnappers and finally beat them at their own game—by himself capturing the damsel in distress and speeding off with her.

Those in the cast are Claude Allister, Andre Cheron, Henry Kolker, Edmund Breon, Boris Karloff and Luis Alberni. William McGann directed.

AT THE GRAND

Winnie Lightner now at the Grand Theatre in her uproarious circus-picture "Side-Show," the Warner Bros. production which also features Charles Butterworth, Evalyn Knapp, Donald Cook, Guy Kibbee and others is required to double for many of the side show freaks—the hula dancer—the fire diver—and last but not least—the cannibal chieftain.

Her costume consists of black tights, grass skirt, silk hat and a dress shirt front from which dangles an alarm clock. She sits on her especial part of the side show platform while Charles Butterworth, trainer of seals, makes a spirited if solemn ballyhoo spiel. The ticking of Winnie's alarm clock did not interfere with the recording of speech—but suddenly the alarm went off. Consternation resulted, with a free-for-all in which Miss Lightner, Mr. Butterworth, the director, the property man and the wardrobe head, took part. A retake was of course in order.

ASHVILLE

Miss Marjorie Beckett was home Thursday and Friday. She is in her second year in training for a nurse at University hospital, Columbus.

Little Bobby Younkum and Buddy Elmore are sick with diphtheria. Both homes are quarantined.

The Ashville W. C. T. U. will hold their regular meeting at the home of Mrs. Mabel Foltz at Duvall, Thursday, Nov. 19.

Mr. and Mrs. Hosler will leave for Florida for a vacation the last of this month.

Mrs. Jesse Keiserman motored to Oxford, Ohio, to visit her two daughters who are attending the university there.

Mr. and Mrs. Don Campbell and little daughter Barbara Ann motored to Reynoldton to spend Friday evening with some friends there.

Any member of the family of Grover Yates, Mill-st. is invited to be a guest of The Herald to the Grand Theatre. Call at this office for ticket.

Jailing of Lord Kylsant Typical British Justice

* * * * * * *

Machinery of English Law Operates Remorselessly and Rapidly, Blind to Social and Financial Position of Malefactor.

The recent conviction and imprisonment of Lord Kylsant, of Carmarthen, one of the most influential peers in England, for fraud in issuing a misleading prospectus of the Royal Mail Shipping Company, focuses public interest upon the rapidity and impartiality with which British machinery of the law operates. Kylsant is not the only person in an eminent social position to suffer the penalty for sailing outside the law. Back in 1923, Lord Alfred Douglas was sent to jail for six months on being convicted of having libeled Winston Churchill, noted statesman, by accusing him of issuing a false communique after the battle of Jutland. Another who found that justice is blind to social position was Mrs. Kate Merrick, London's night club queen. Mrs. Merrick spent six months in cheerless Wormwood Scrubs prison for a violation of the English liquor law. The fact that Mrs. Merrick is the mother-in-law of two of England's bluest-blooded peers, had no more weight in the scales of justice than if her sons-in-law were a couple of clam-diggers. Thus it may be seen that though our British cousins may be slow in some things, they are fast enough in enforcing respect for the law.

Makers of Vicks VapoRub Announce a New Plan for Home-Control of Colds

News Comes With Development of a New Product; A Unique Companion to the Famous Treatment, Based on a New Idea for Prevention of Colds.

Makes Possible a Further Reduction of the Family "Cold-Tax" This Winter In Time, Money, Health.

A quarter century ago, Vicks VapoRub introduced the modern external method of treating colds. Now, Vicks Nose & Throat Drops latest development by the Vicks chemists introduced a new idea in preventing colds. Together, these perfect allies make possible the new Vick Plan for better "Control of Colds" and reduction of the family "Colds Tax" in time, money and health.

Here is the Vick Plan of Control:

1. BEFORE a Cold Starts.

On exposure to colds or any of the causes that ordinarily lead to colds—crowded indoor places—stuffy, poorly ventilated rooms—sudden temperature changes wet and cold that slow down the normal functioning of the nose. Nature's marvelous "first line of defense against colds" use Vicks Drops promptly. Or, if a cold actually threatens—at that first stuffy, sneezy irritation of the nasal passages—a few drops up each nostril, and many annoying colds will be avoided.

2.—AFTER a Cold Starts.

At night, rub Vicks VapoRub well over throat and chest and cover with warm flannel. Leave bed-clothing loose around the neck so the medicated vapors can be inhaled all night long. During the day any time or place—use the convenient Vicks Drops as often as needed. This gives you full 24-hour treatment. (If there is a cough, you will like the new Vicks Cough Drops—medicated with ingredients of Vicks VapoRub.)

Trial Offer to Vick Users.

The makers want every user of Vicks Vapo-Rub to try Vicks Nose Drops. Free trial samples of the Nose Drops were sent every druggist in the United States—but if you failed to get yours, buy a bottle today and try out the Vick Plan for better Home-Control of Colds as directed. If you are not delighted with results, your druggist is authorized to refund your money without question.—Adv.

Hypertrophists All

"HYPERTROPHY" is the name given by a university scientist to the disease which afflicts "any one who becomes fanatical in his love for a particular sport." He describes it as a growth.

This undoubtedly represents an advance in science, but it will not detract from the enthusiasm of a fan to know what ails him when he is shouting himself hoarse at a football game in which his team is winning. Neither will his calling it a disease cause golfers to trade their bags of clubs for a tennis outfit.

Devotion to a particular sport is almost a national characteristic of the American people. Hence, they must be a race of hypertrophists. That individual is rare who divides his love equally between two or more sports.

However, does it not follow naturally, logically and scientifically that those who devote themselves to a particular phase of literature, art, music, work or science are equally unbalanced? Those afflicated with a mania for one of the several branches of sport will suspect that the discoverer of hypertrophy was talking in self-defense or to ease his own mind when he concluded that the mental hypertrophists suffer fewer ill effects from the disease than do the physical hypertrophists. The former are, it may be said, delightfully unbalanced, while the latter are victims of corns, bunions, boils, sore throats, athletic hearts and Charley horses.

That new human malady, however, will not keep one of the million of football enthusiasts away from Saturday's game and will not make organized baseball a losing business next season. Before that will come about the discoverer of hypertrophy will have to do some missionary work in those universities and colleges where compulsory physical training is deemed necessary to prevent mental hypertrophy.

Unmorality

OF the fourteen bloody years since 1914, four were years of wholesale international butchery and destruction, and the other ten have been characterized abroad by bloody revolution, anarchy and civil war and in this county by crimes of peculiar ruthlessness, indicative, in many cases of extraordinary and startling psychology.

The Scriptural phrase "possessed of devils" seems to come nearest to describing the state of mind of some of these criminals. What seems to have happened to a large number of these offenders is not merely an apparent mental return to the accepted slaughter code of the jungle as one of the unquestioned rights of human association for self-preservation and self-advancement. The reversion to the primitive tiger law of life is not a new phenomenon in any country. But the thing that is significant is the apparently widespread elimination of moral standards and moral sense among persons supposedly of a higher type than professional social outlaws.

It is commonly supposed, and probably with some reason, that thousands of automobiles are burned or "stolen" each year for the insurance. Fire insurance is also the provocation for many incendiary fires in buildings. In the eyes of everybody but themselves these people are criminals. In certain circles it is virtually recognized as a legitimate trade custom. And yet many of those who indorse it would balk at committing crime in any other form.

It is said that "knowledge is power," so the business man who is equipped with a comprehensive knowledge of the peoples' customs and wants is a persistent newspaper advertiser, and by so doing enjoys a good business.

The persistent advertiser realizes that good will contributes to business success and that it can be obtained only by dependable and satisfactory service.

When trade is poor the motto of every firm that has something to sell should be advertising and more advertising.

Economy ceases to be economy when it is applied to the money that should be put aside for newspaper advertising. The wise business man knows this and intensifies his advertising in a manner calculated to appeal to the advertising in a manner calculated to appeal to the widest possible number of potential customers.

This can be done only by newspaper advertising

"The CZARINA'S RUBIES"

by Sidney Warwick

© 1931, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

READ THIS FIRST

Katharine Faring is the rightful owner of the Czarina rubies, hidden when her grandfather, Prince Murinov, was slain by a revlutionary mob. Her friend, Frank Severn, goes to Russia, finds them and entrusts them to Paul Federoff, who reaches England, only to be slain at a country place called Monksilver.

Severn returns and hides himself at his own country home, Beggar's Court, and calls upon his friend Jim Wynter for help. However, he is kidnaped before Wynter can reach him.

Katharine, once a successful violinist, has given up her career because of an injury to her wrist. She is poor. Jim Wynter rescues her from the unwelcome attentions of Lester Malin, who has money, but no morals. Wynter tells her of Severn's kidnaping and she suggests that the unfortunate man may be held prisoner at Monksilver, where she believes the rubies are hidden. Wynter resolves to go there immediately.

NOW GO ON

CHAPTER XIV

Struck down and dying at Monksilver, Federoff had yet managed with failing strength, to write two words, a veiled message with a particular significance for Severn. Two words in Russian:

"Still safe."

"Still safe in some secret hiding place at Monksilver, those jewels," Jim Wynter said to himself thoughtfully, as the taxi crossed the river by Hammersmith Bridge. "If only I could hope that poor old Severn would come safely through too!"

Severn had told Katharine he was leaving Vienna immediately for Paris, there to cross by air to England. That he had already booked his passage by telegram with one of the cross-Channel air services, and would see her almost as soon as his letter reached her.

Why had Frank Severn failed to keep his word? And not only had he not come then. From that day till this Katharine had no further word of him.

Could Severn have made that proposed flight to England five weeks ago—and then something unforeseen have happened to him over here? Wynter wondered. It should be possible, at any rate, to find out from the Airways people if he canceled his ticket for that date, or if he did actually fly over.

Yet if he had crossed then as arranged, would Severn have failed to let Katharine know that he was in England? Besides, Severn had only just arrived in England . . . a man all gone to pieces, Sant had said, a man evidently on the rack of some unnerving fear.

FEAR

Fear—the last word Wynter would ever have dreamed of associating with Frank Severn! Yet that letter that had taken him down to Beggar's Court last night had seemed to bear out Sant's words.

"Except for Sant and the servants here, you are the only one who knows I am in England," Severn had written, "no one else must have as much as an inkling. Jim, I want to see you urgently—I may need your help. Put off any engagement, only for God's sake, come!"

What a bewildering mystery it was! Where had Severn been during those five weeks of silence between his letter to Katharine and his secret return to England three nights ago? And above all, what had happened last night at Beggar's Court?

Would a clue be forthcoming at Monksilver?

That writing on the torn playing card—traced there by whom or in what circumstances he had no means of knowing. . . . The murder at Monksilver weeks ago of the man had been Severn's secret messenger from Russia. . . . The probability that those almost priceless jewels were still midden within its four walls; everything pointed to that house by the river as being bound up with last night's sinister mystery.

He had left Katharine full of anxious suspense.

"It was for my sake Frank undertook that dangereous mission. I shall never forgive myself if he has come to any harm. Those men who followed the jewels from Russia murdered Federoff for them—it can only be that Frank has fallen into those evil hands!"

It looked very much as though her conviction was right.

A sudden grimness tightened Jim Wynter's mouth. Well, perhaps these unknown antagonists weren't going to have things all their own way!

It was striking midnight as the taxi ran through Barnes into the Lower Richmond road. Not far off now.

IMPULSIVE ACT

It was a late hour to present himself at Monksilver; Wynter realized that he had acted a trifle impulsively in not waiting until the morning, and might have let himself in for a fruitless journey. If there was a caretaker there the man would probably have locked up for the night and gone to bed; he might even find the place shut up and utterly deserted. Wynter gave a little shrug. In any case he and Sant would come tomorrow—and perhaps the police. Here at Monksilver, if anywhere, he was convinced, the clue to Frank Severn's disappearance was to be sought—this place linked with the lost Czarina Rubies.

Would those jewels, dogged as if by some haunting fatality, ever reach Katharine? To be the rightful inheritor of those almost priceless stones—and to be in such stress of need as he knew her to be! What a queer irony of fate it was!

Wynter's thoughts went back pitifully to this girl, into whose life so much tragedy had crept. . . . Those nightmare months of terror and peril in Russia and then, after a brief taste of amazing success, her maimed career, the cup struck from her lips.

"I'm glad chance has flung us together again," Jim Wynter said to himself suddenly, "and now when she so needs a friend she can count on."

It was just then that that motor-lorry thrust itself upon his consciousness with exciting abruptness as if out of the blue, its driver choosing that moment to swing out suddenly from a side turning in optimistic regardlessness of main road traffic.

The driver of Wynter's taxi, swerving sharply, avoided collision by bare inches; unluckily the swerve ended in a skid on the wet roadway, and the taxi crashed into a lamp standard. The suddenly sobered lorry driver had jammed on his brakes, and in so doing skidded, too, to fall foul of another car.

Neither Wynter nor the taximan was much the worse beyond a bad shaking, but the taxi itself, its radiator smashed in, was left a total loss.

Jim Wynter disentangled himself from the wrecked taxi, to give his name and address to a constable, as well as his account of the accident, which was caustic enough to make the lorry-driver's face redden.

A FAMILIAR FACE

Since his presence on the scene seemed no longer necessary, after thrusting a ten-shilling note for his fare on the taximan, Wynter was about to push his way through the crowd to resume his interrupted journey.

And at that same moment, suddenly revealed by the light of a street lamp on a passing car, a face flashed out to his eyes from the night—Frank Severn's face!

A face strangely changed from when Wynter had seen it last, haggard and gray with a queer pallor almost like that of a man unconscious or drugged, the eyes closed—but Frank Severn beyond all doubt!

And the face of the man driving the car seemed vaguely familiar, too, though in the first startled moment Jim Wynter could not have said why. Then suddenly the explanation flashed across him.

"Creyke!"

He knew the man now! The driver was the younger manservant whom he had seen at Beggar's Court last night.

Then before Wynter could pull himself out of that first moment of bewildered surprise to push his way through the crowd, the car, clear of obstacles again, had accelerated and shot forward. And Wynter was left staring after it helplessly.

His eyes followed the car, full of impatient chagrin as this amazing chance that had been too fleeting for him to profit by slipped past.

"But Creyke's driving to Monksilver—must be!" he said to himself suddenly.

Monksilver, of course! There could hardly be any other explanation of the coincidence of running across the missing man so near that house. The car that had eluded him now he would find at Monksilver! What luck that he had acted on the impulse to go to that house tonight!

What part was Creyke planning in this queer, inexplicable drama? Creyke, like the other servants at Beggar's Court, had professed himself completely in the dark respecting the mystery of Severn's disappearance—and yet tonight he was driving the missing man to Monksilver!

Education, Cleanliness Rout Dread Typhus Fever

This Disease Is Becoming Rare as the World's Living Conditions Improve, Says Dr. Copeland, Describing the Infection and Treatment

By ROYAL S. COPELAND, M. D.
United States Senator from New York.
Former Commissioner of Health, New York City.

TYPHUS fever is a disease associated with filth and unhygienic surroundings. It is easy to understand why this disease was so prevalent in the days of poor sanitation and unspeakable living conditions.

Dr. Copeland

Somebody has said, "The history of typhus is the history of human wretchedness." This is a true statement. As civilization and education have spread over the earth, this disease has greatly decreased.

Typhus fever is often confused with typhoid fever. But the diseases are quite different and run different courses.

Typhus fever is an acute infection usually considered to be caused by a germ carried by lice. In this country, however, it is a rarity for the disease to be spread by lice. Some scientists believe the disease may be transmitted by some other insect.

A recent writer suggests that typhus may be spread from infected rats by the rat mite. According to his investigation, it was found that many patients with typhus fever have been bitten by rats.

These rats are usually found in the South. They carry so-called tropical rat mites, which they transmit by their bites. With a better understanding of the actual cause it is hoped to wipe out this disease.

As in typhoid, there is constant fever which lasts about two weeks. A reddish rash appears on the skin, from the third to the fifth day. It differs from typhoid fever in that it rarely results in complications. However, really serious cases of typhus fever are occasionally seen.

This disease is more common in Europe than in this country. The last epidemic we had was in 1893. Since then, only occasional cases have been reported. When seen in this country, it is usually found in recently arrived immigrants.

The prevention of the disease is largely a matter of personal cleanliness. It is also a problem related to the economic welfare. Dark, crowded unsanitary homes are favorable to infection with typhus fever.

The general management of typhus fever is very similar to that of typhoid fever. It consists essentially of good nursing, proper food, and isolation of the patient.

It is very important that the patient be removed from actual contact with other people, so that the disease will not be spread. Where the temperature is mild and the climate suitable, it is best to treat these patients in the open air.

With complete understanding of the disease, particularly as to its cause, this disease will no longer be encountered. It is more and more rare.

Answers to Health Queries

Chronicle Reader. Q. — What causes nervousness? Would a nerve specialist be of help in such a case? Would nervousness cause a tightness of the spinal region?

A.—Nervousness can usually be traced to some underlying soucre. Try to locate the exact cause first of all. A nerve specialist might be most helpful under the circumstances. Yes, since this is the nerve center.

Now Showing At The Cliftona

AT THE GRAND

"I Like Your Nerve," First National's second starring vehicle for Douglas Fairbanks, Jr., will be seen at the Cliftona Theatre tomorrow and Wednesday. The personable screen favorite appears as a happy-go-lucky American in Central America—supposedly on business—but in reality on love and adventure bent.

Lovely Loretta Young, is the senorita who captivates the irresponsible youth—causes him to quell a revolution—capsize the citizenry of more than one tropical village as he whirls through in his high-powered car—steals a march on a dishonest minister of finance Highjack a gang of kidnappers and finally beat them at their own game—by himself capturing the damsel in distress and speeding off with her.

Those in the cast are Claude Allister, Andre Cheron, Henry Kolker, Edmund Breon, Boris Karloff and Luis Alberni. William McGann directed.

AT THE GRAND

Winnie Lightner now at the Grand Theatre in her uproarious circus-picture "Side-Show," the Warner Bros. production which also features Charles Butterworth, Evalyn Knapp, Donald Cook, Guy Kibbee and others is required to double for many of the side show freaks—the hula dancer—the fire diver—and last but not least—the cannibal chieftain.

Her costume consists of black tights, grass skirt, silk hat and a dress shirt front from which dangles an alarm clock. She sits on her especial part of the side show platform while Charles Butterworth, trainer of seals, makes a spirited if solemn ballyhoo spiel. The ticking of Winnie's alarm clock did not interfere with the recording of speech—but suddenly the alarm went off. Consternation resulted, with a free-for-all in which Miss Lightner, Mr. Butterworth, the director, the property man and the wardrobe head, took part. A retake was of course in order.

ASHVILLE

Miss Marjorie Beckett was home Thursday and Friday. She is in her second year in training for a nurse at University hospital, Columbus.

Little Bobby Younkum and Buddy Elmore are sick with diphtheria. Both homes are quarantined.

The Ashville W. C. T. U. will hold their regular meeting at the home of Mrs. Mabel Foltz at Duvall, Thursday, Nov. 19.

Mr. and Mrs. Hosler will leave for Florida for a vacation the last of this month.

Mrs. Jesse Keiserman motored to Oxford, Ohio, to visit her two daughters who are attending the university there.

Mr. and Mrs. Don Campbell and little daughter Barbara Ann motored to Rowalton to spend Friday evening with some friends there.

Any member of the family of Grover Yates, Mill-st. is invited to be a guest of The Herald to the Grand Theatre. Call at this office for ticket.

Jailing of Lord Kylsant Typical British Justice

* * * * * *

Machinery of English Law Operates Remorselessly and Rapidly, Blind to Social and Financial Position of Malefactor.

LORD ALFRED DOUGLAS

The recent conviction and imprisonment of Lord Kylsant, of Carmarthen, one of the most influential peers in England, for fraud in issuing a misleading prospectus of the Royal Mail Shipping Company, focuses public interest upon the rapidity and impartiality with which British machinery of the law operates. Kylsant is not the only person in an eminent social position to suffer the penalty for sailing outside the law. Back in 1923, Lord Alfred Douglas was sent to jail for six months on being convicted of having libeled Winston Churchill, noted statesman, by accusing him of issuing a false communique after the battle of Jutland. Another who found that justice is blind to social position was Mrs. Kate Merrick, London's night club queen. Mrs. Merrick spent six months in cheerless Wormwood Scrubs prison for a violation of the English liquor law. The fact that Mrs. Merrick is the mother-in-law of two of England's bluest-blooded peers, had no more weight in the scales of justice than if her sons-in-law were a couple of clam-diggers. Thus it may be seen that though our British cousins may be slow in some things, they are fast enough in enforcing respect for the law.

Makers of Vicks VapoRub Announce a New Plan for Home-Control of Colds

News Comes With Development of a New Product; A Unique Companion to the Famous Treatment, Based on a New Idea for Prevention of Colds.

Makes Possible a Further Reduction of the Family "Colds-Tax" This Winter In Time, Money, Health.

ing youth He shot once but the distance was too great. This chase lasted for nearly one-half mile and while it was going on, Mrs Boggs was summoning neighbors and the sheriff's office where Deputy Sheriffs Bryan Custer and Miller Fissell answered the call.

SURROUND FIELD

When the deputies reached the Boggs residence they were joined by Evan Boggs, Ed Tucker, Thomas Wright, Glen Rader and Edward Kreisel, all armed They started through the field and across the tracks into a corn held where Mr Boggs said the youth was hiding After a search in which the entire field was surrounded the West Virginia lad was found by Deputy Custer and Evan Boggs He had forced himself against the ground so hard that streaks of dirt were found on his face when he was taken to his feet.

He was not armed, proving that his threat of Mrs. Boggs was merely a bluff

A search disclosed that Patterson had taken two gold watches, one a ladies watch, a watch chain and a ring. He was handcuffed, and taken to the county jail where he will face charges of breaking and entering and larceny

The boy said he did not know the name of his companion whom he said he met in Ironton He admitted to the deputies that the Chevrolet car bearing the Pennsylvania tags was a stolen automobile. He told deputies that he had been working in restaurants in Pennsylvania cities, including Scranton, and that his parents are deceased.

ing youth. He shot once but the distance was too great. This chase lasted for nearly one-half mile and while it was going on, Mrs. Boggs was summoning neighbors and the sheriff's office where Deputy Sheriffs Bryan Custer and Miller Fissell answered the call.

SURROUND FIELD

When the deputies reached the Boggs residence they were joined by Evan Boggs, Ed Tucker, Thomas Wright, Glen Rader and Edward Kreisel, all armed. They started through the field and across the tracks into a corn field where Mr. Boggs said the youth was hiding. After a search in which the entire field was surrounded the West Virginia lad was found by Deputy Custer and Evan Boggs. He had forced himself against the ground so hard that streaks of dirt were found on his face when he was taken to his feet.

He was not armed, proving that his threat of Mrs. Boggs was merely a bluff.

A search disclosed that Patterson had taken two gold watches, one a ladies watch, a watch chain and a ring. He was handcuffed, and taken to the county jail where he will face charges of breaking and entering and larceny.

The boy said he did not know the name of his companion whom he said he met in Ironton. He admitted to the deputies that the Chevrolet car bearing the Pennsylvania tags was a stolen automobile. He told deputies that he had been working in restaurants in Pennsylvania cities, including Scranton, and that his parents are deceased.
